Trade Treaty Gives U.S. Sweeping Gains

BRITISH PACT EASES TARIFF LAW ON AUTOS

Agreement to Be Signed Today Includes Concessions on 1,000 Products.

SEEN BLOCK TO FASCISM

40 Per Cent of World Trade Involved in Far-Reaching Economic Program.

(By International News Service)
(Copyright, 1938.)

WASHINGTON — Gaining sweeping tariff reductions for agricultural and industrial products with its two largest customers, the United States today successfully concluded negotiations for reciprocal trade treaties with Great Britain and Canada.

The agreements were hailed as of far-reaching economic and political importance to the democratic bloc of nations in combatting Nazi and Fascist totalitarianism.

Negotiations completed after a year of bargaining, all that remained to be done was for officials of the three governments to affix their signatures to the treaties.

Details Held Secret.

This was to be accomplished amid elaborate ceremony in the east room of the White House at 4 p. m. this afternoon.

Until the documents are signed this afternoon, the state department withheld under official seal all details of the tariff reductions and concessions granted by each country on approximately 1,000 products.

International News Service is able to disclose exclusively, however, that the United States has gained widespread trade advantages over other foreign countries, and has persuaded the United Kingdom to accord to many principal American exports the same treatment given to those of the British dominions and commonwealths.

The Canadian treaty replaces the one in effect for the past two years and is similar in most respects. The base has been broadened and the scope of the treaty

New Serial Story Combines Romance With Philosophy

With the concluding chapter today of The News-Journal's serial, "Afraid to Marry," a new story begins tomorrow which combines college romance with a sound philosophy on "how to make friends."

"Romance, Inc.," is a college novel by Oren Arnold with Rice Institute in Texas as its locale. The story is so refreshingly new that reading the first chapter is all that is needed to hold a reader's interest to the very last chapter.

A pretty young widow, Sara Sue Davis, rents an attractive cottage near the Rice campus and hangs out a shingle which reads "Counsel in Romance."

Interested students take one look at the shingle and a second look at Sara Sue, who hopes to make herself invaluable to the college by straightening out mixed romances.

But Cupid himself throws a monkey wrench into her smooth running plans when he sends the wrong—or rather, the right—man to Sara Sue for advice. Watch for the first chapter tomorrow.

PAY BOASTS IN AKRON ORDERED

10,000 White Collar Workers Given Hikes Up To 20 Per Cent.

AKRON —(U.P.)— Pay increases ranging from 10 to 20 per cent for 10,000 white collar workers in three Akron rubber factories were announced today. The increases offset pay cuts made last April.

The increases apply to all salaried workers in the Goodyear, Goodrich and Firestone plants who are receiving less than $300 a month. Those receiving more than $300 will be considered individually in the matter of increases, the management said.

Workers in branch plants outside Akron also were affected by the pay increase order.

Predicts Davey Will Call Legislature on Schools

'Odd' Co-ed

When Patricia Anne James of Cuyahoga Falls, registered at Kent State university, Kent, four weeks late, little did she realize how "odd" her registration was. It so happened that there were 1,204 men registered at the university and 1,204 women. Miss James thus becomes the "odd" woman at the university.

Dietrich Foresees Special Session to Consider Financial Woes.

FEELS OPTIMISTIC

Director In Address Here Expects State Schools Will Be Kept Open.

BULLETIN

Governor Martin L. Davey today dashed cold water on State Education Director E. N. Dietrich's prediction that he would call a special session of the legislature to deal with school financing. Asked to comment on Dietrich's statement, Davey was reported by International News Service as saying "It is doubtful whether Mr. Dietrich has the authority to make such a statement."

Predicting that Gov. Martin L. Davey would call a special session of the legislature to consider financing of Ohio schools before his term expires, E. N. Dietrich, state director of education, said last night in a talk before the Mansfield Schoolmasters' club that he felt "optimistic about keeping the state's schools open for the rest of the term."

Adding that "the governor is aware of the needs of the schools," Dietrich said, "I have every reason to believe he will order a special legislative session before the end of the year to do something about the foundation program's $15,000,000 deficit."

Allocates More Cash.

Meanwhile, Dietrich said he would allocate enough cash Friday to retire half of the notes the schools owe, and in December probably would distribute the quarterly foundation funds in authorization to borrow again.

"There is a question as to my legal right to authorize more borrowing, however," he said, "and I have asked Attorney General Duffy for an opinion on the matter."

The question, he said, involves the "mortgaging of next year's sales tax revenue to pay this year's bills."

"Since an appropriation to operate the schools for the entire year was set up several months ago and the funds to meet it have been lacking, there is little doubt about the attorney general authorizing the certification to schools," he said.

Cites 2 Causes.

Dietrich blamed the removal of the sales tax from foods and the use of sales tax money for relief for the school deficit.

"It's true, the foundation program started with an eight million dollar deficit back in 1935, but it would have paid its debt and current bills if the revenue it was promised hadn't been taken away," he asserted.

"If the program is to continue,

TRIO MENTIONED FOR PARK BOARD

Observers Speculate as Mayor Studies Possibilities; Says He's in No Hurry.

While Mayor Claude M. Hunter remained silent about who he will appoint to the new board of park commissioners, city hall observers were engaged today in the usual speculation on just who will be named to fill the posts.

The three-man board will be created as the result of the approval of the commission plan at the Nov. 8 election.

Hunter today said he was in "no hurry" to name the new commission which takes over the man-

CHECK CHARGES

U. S. Investigators End Ohio WPA Politics Inquiry.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Two investigators for the senate campaign expenditures committee planned to return to Washington today after checking into complaints of alleged political coercion among Ohio WPA employes.

Senator-Elect Robert A. Taft and Governor-Elect John W. Bricker, Republicans, charged before the Nov. 8 election in a telegram to Committee Chairman Sheppard that pressure had been brought upon WPA workers to support Democratic candidates.

The senate committee announced Nov. 6 that a partial investigation showed no evidence in support of the complaint.

Investigators Joseph R. Cannon and Joseph T. Gaghan conferred here yesterday with Arthur E. Edwards, acting Cuyahoga county WPA director, and Morris J. Schwartz, WPA employment supervisor.

SHORT ON WATER

Bellevue Prepares To Tap Wells As Drought Continues.

BELLEVUE, O.—(AP)—This city of 7,000 prepared today to tap deep driven wells for an emergency water supply if there is no heavy rain before Sunday to replenish municipal reservoirs.

No heavy rain has fallen here in three months. A year ago an unusual underground flood caused extensive damage.

WHEE! OIL!

Farmer Lets Down Bucket Into Well, Draws Up Treasure.

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Farmer Edward Stein let down a bucket into his well to get water and drew up oil instead.

Geologists said gas probably had forced the oil in from a plugged oil well nearby.

Mother Loses Plea For Her Son

Mrs. Bertha Dalhover Craig and her attorney are shown above leaving the White House after attempting to appeal to President Roosevelt to save her son, James Dalhover, last member of the Al Brady gang, from the electric chair. The White House referred her to Attorney General Cummings, who, it was understood today, had recommended against clemency. Dalhover is to die in the electric chair tonight at Michigan City, Ind.

'Safety Town' Pushed On Way to Nation-Wide Fame

American Automobile Association Makes It Part of Pedestrian Safety Program.

Mansfield's "Safety Town" today had been adopted by the American Automobile association as part of their permanent pedestrian safety program.

The pre-school traffic education program was adopted by the association yesterday at its annual national convention in Cleveland, after Frend C. Boals, who originated the unique plan here, had presented the program to the 200 members at the conference.

As the result of the association's action the "Safety Town" plan of traffic education will be included in the organization's safety program which is put up in manuscript form and distributed throughout the nation.

The "Safety Town" idea made a "hit" at the convention, not alone because of its unusual features of traffic education, but partly because of the manner in which Boals presented the program.

'Just a Policeman.'

Stepping to the platform in the banquet room at the Hollendon hotel, Boals burst forth with the statement:

"I'm just a policeman, pounding the bricks every day. I'm not a member of hte association."

"But, I have something here in the way of traffic education which we' are using succesfully down in Mansfield."

Frank Beverstock, secretary of the Richland county auto club and Miss Betty Braden, supervisor on the project, who accompanied Boals said the group pricked up "their ears" immediately.

Boals then gave an extensive outline of the "Safety Town" project which has been carried on here at the city's playgrounds.

Following his talk he was besieged with requests for pictures of the project taken here and a more comprehensive outline of the education plan of traffic safety.

BLAMES 'FAG'

Chief Investigating Cause of Blaze in Blockhouse.

Fire which late Tuesday partially destroyed the 126-year-old blockhouse in South park was probably started from a lighted cigaret or a match, Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger said today completing his investigation.

The chief who at first had believed the blaze had started from a short circuit in the electric wiring said investigation disclosed that one of the windows in the building had been broken recently and that he believed that either a transient had been in the building and left a lighted cigaret or that a lighted match had been dropped into the building.

The historic structure, the oldest landmark in Mansfield, it was learned today was covered by insurance.

PLUNGE KILLS WORKMAN

LIMA, O.—(INS)—A 20-foot headlong plunge from the marque of a theater proved fatal to William Parcher, 27, today.

Third Cooking School Session Attracts 1,400 – Ends Friday

The third day of The News-Journal's fall cooking school drew almost 1,400 women to the Ohio theater this morning where they crowded the lower floor and filled half of the balcony.

The fourth and final day of the most successful cooking school The News-Journal has sponsored is tomorrow when Miss Ruth Chambers, lecturer, and her assistant, Miss Elizabeth Rucker, will present "Food for Friends at Company Time."

Dishes prepared tomorrow will have a distinctly "company" appearance as well as taste. A crown roast of pork, one of the most "imperial" of meat dishes is on the menu, with such appetite-teasers as with veal scallops, a cottage cheese ring, quick patty cases and cranberry fritters.

Today there was a dish attractive enough for company any time. It was a roll of pork sirloin, boned and roasted, served on a platter of endive and surrounded with halves of pears, tinted with blush-pink.

A veal shoulder roast served with halves of peaches, a butterscotch cake, lamb turnovers, red flannel hash and minute-steak sandwiches were among the dishes prepared today. The latter, a recipe of which is in the booklets given out today, is the answer to a hostess' prayer for something "different."

Among the interested persons at the school this morning were 80 girls from the home economics class of the Lexington high school.

The largest crowd of the entire school is anticipated tomorrow, and additional ushers will be added to take care of the balcony crowds.

HUNT FIREBUG

Cleveland Police Probe Fifth Mystery Blaze.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A firebug was sought today after the fifth mysterious fire recently in the St. Clair-East 105th street section of the city broke out last night.

The fire, which started in the basement, spread so rapidly that escape was cut off for Edward Myer, 60, who lived on the third floor. He was rescued by firemen.

FARM HAND, 65, KILLED BY CAR ON LUCAS ROAD

C. H. Jordan, Struck by Auto Walking Along Highway; Driver, 19, Quizzed.

SAYS LIGHTS BLINDED HIM

Fatality 20th in Richland Traffic This Year; Victim Was Ashland County Native.

Struck by an automobile as he walked along state route 603 near Lucas, Caleb H. Jordan, 65, a farm hand, was killed instantly about 7:40 p. m. Wednesday, a short distance from the farm where he worked. He was the county's 20th traffic victim of the year.

Jordan received a broken neck and fractures of both legs when he was struck by a car driven by Hilbert Schrack, 19, of R. D. 1, Lucas. The youth ran to a nearby house to summon help, and the victim's body was removed to the Byerly funeral home in Lucas.

Richland Traffic County's 1938 Toll

This date last year—25

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, who questioned young Schrack this morning, said the accident apparently was unavoidable. Deputy Sheriff J. R. Hetler investigated the accident and brought young Schrack to Mansfield today.

Fails to See Pedestrian.

The youth told authorities he was blinded by the lights of a car approaching from the opposite direction and failed to see Jordan who was walking south on the left side of the highway. Schrack was driving north toward Mifflin. Jordan's body was thrown several feet off the edge of the highway by the impact.

The accident occurred about one-fourth of a mile north of route 39 and about two miles from Lucas.

Jordan was returning to the John Vale farm where he worked, after visiting his wife, Mrs. Lydia Jordan, at the home of Foster Blust, a short distance north of the Vale farm.

Jordan is the fourth aged man killed by automobiles under similar circumstances in the county this year.

Born In Loudonville.

A native of Ashland county, Jordan was born near Loudonville, in 1874. He came to the Vale farm to work less than a year ago after leaving the Ashland Malleable company at Ashland, where he was employed for several years.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mildred of Mansfield and Pearl of Chicago; two sisters, Mrs. Addie Stutz and Mrs. Annie Wiley, both of Ashland; four brothers, Clarence of Ashland, Frank of Olivesburg, Pete of Ganges and Thomas of Butler, and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete at noon today.

12 ILL, TAINTED FOOD BLAMED

Second Outbreak of Poisoning Reported at State Hospital.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — Twelve persons connected with Longview state hospital have been ill this week in a second outbreak of food poisoning at the institution, Dr. E. A. Baber, superintendent, revealed today.

Dr. Baber said the source of the poisoning had been traced to the kitchen of the main building. Analysis were being made.

Two staff physcians, three attendants and several patients have suffered acute abdominal pains and nausea.

A month ago 65 persons suffered from poisoning at the hospital.

MILLER, ECONOMIC EXPERT, ORDERED TO WASHINGTON

Embassy Official, Ambassador Wilson Get Orders From State Department As Capital Hears of Possible Economic Reprisals By U. S.

BERLIN—The United States commercial attache, Douglas Miller, today was recalled to Washington by the department of commerce.

His assistant will take over his duties during his absence from Berlin.

Miller was appointed commercial attache last year after having served for fifteen years as assistant commercial attache in Germany. He is considered one of the most competent economic experts in Europe.

Miller, whose home is in Denver, Col., had previously requested his transfer which has now been made effective by instructions recalling him to Washington. He is expected to leave by the end of the present month on an American vessel although his instructions permit him to return at any time not later than Jan. 1.

The calling home of Miller was regarded by the American colony in Berlin as a significant indication that the United States department of commerce had lost interest in Germany for the present.

(The Berlin announcement came on the same day set for the signing in Washington of broad commercial treaties among the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

(Ambassador Wilson was summoned home by President Roosevelt for report and consultation on the German anti-Jewish campaign.)

Economic Reprisals Loom.

From Washington came word that the possibility that President Roosevelt might resort to economic reprisals against Nazi Germany to implement his moral condemnation of German racial and religious persecutions was being discussed in official quarters today.

Demands for such economic measures were deluging the White House and state department from many sections of the nation.

Responsible officials there, however, pursued a policy of silence regarding any future steps that might be taken in the wake of President Roosevelt's public rebuke of the Hitler government.

It was emphasized that the formation of decisions for the future must await the arrival late next week of American Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson, who was called home to give a personal report of the German-Jewish situation to the president. Wilson sails from Havre, France, today aboard the liner Manhattan and is scheduled to dock in New York next Thursday.

In some quarters the possibility that the president might invoke the embargo section of the 1930 tariff act against German commerce was discussed.

This clause permits application of an initial 50 per cent tariff penalty against the goods of any nation discriminating against American commerce. Outright embargo can follow if the discrimination is not removed. Germany is already on the American trade "blacklist" for economic discriminations.

German press attacks against President Roosevelt continued in Berlin today.

Ridicules President.

Hitler's own newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter ridiculed President Roosevelt's remarks regarding American preparations to defend the western hemisphere.

Completely ignoring the president's expression of "shock" respecting the reich's anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic measures, the paper published the president's revelations on rearmament under this headline:

"Roosevelt's fantasies about alleged threats to the Americas and his casting of suspicion on other powers is serving the United

DUSSELDORF: Slain Nazi Secretary Buried; Hitler Silent

(By International News Service)

DUSSELDORF, Germany—Nazi Germany's newest hero, Ernst von Rath, went to his grave today amid resounding calls to Germans abroad to do their duty for a reich which is marching "on its way."

In the presence of Chancellor Hitler, Jews were castigated as "murderers" and "liars" by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in a eulogy to the young Paris embassy secretary, whose death at the hands of a Polish Jew made him a Nazi "martyr."

"Neither calumnies nor terror can ever return Germany to serfdom," Von Ribbentrop proclaimed. "The reich is on its way."

Wilhelm Bohle, chief of the Nazi foreign organization, attacked the "murder lust" and "dirty games" of Jews and ordered Germans outside the reich to serve the community which "we establish outside Germany as we did within."

Although Hitler attended the ceremonies in the Rhinehall, where Von Rath's body lay in state, he failed to deliver an expected oration. Previously it had been anticipated he might reply to President Roosevelt's statement on Germany's anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic measures.

LONDON: Britain, U. S. Near Accord On Haven For Jews

(By United Press)

LONDON—Great Britain and the United States neared agreement today on a plan to ransom German Jews and resettle them in what would be the most prodigious mass emigration in history.

The plan, initiated by American Ambassador Joseph Kennedy and which would cost approximately $150,000,000, was expected to be submitted to a five-power directorate of the inter-governmental Jew committee.

In its essence, the plan calls for Great Britain to provide land in her colonies, while Jewish and other private organizations of the United States raise money to finance their settlement.

France and other colonial powers, as well as South American nations, might also be asked to contribute land.

If the negotiations succeed Lord Winterton would summon the five-power directorate, including representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, The Netherlands and Brazil within two weeks.

Diplomatic circles warned, however, that there were many difficulties to overcome before all or almost German Jews could be assured of a refuge abroad.

According to British sources, Ambassador Kennedy told Lord Halifax, British foreign minister, that the United States government would not be able to contribute money to the plan, but that a huge fund could be raised privately in the United States, if Britain found land for the Jews.

As a result Britain began scouring the empire for likely places and picked British Guiana as one possibility.

It was learned that Malcolm MacDonald, colonial-dominions secretary, conferred with Stanley M. Bruce, high commissioner for Australia. It was reported that the French were prepared to offer territory in Madagascar.

GORKI'S NOVEL PICTURES FALL OF OLD RUSSIA

'The Specter,' on Library List, Covers Period From 1906 to Revolution.

Gorki's latest novel, "The Specter," which covers the period from 1906 to the revolution of 1917 in Russian history is among the new fiction additions at the Public library. These critical years are seen through the eyes of Clim Samghin, a member of the intellectual proletariat. "The Specter" is Gorki at his best, and it preserves for all time in the form of a novel, the picture of the downfall of the old, and the emergence of the New Russia.

Ishbel Ross, New York newspaper women for a number of years, who first came into literary prominence with her "Ladies of The Press," turns to fiction in her novel, "Fifty Years a Woman." Mrs. Ross tells a poignantly appealing story of a woman from childhood through a professional career, love, marriage, motherhood and divorce. Mary Leith's life is a colorful panorama of America, its changing creeds and customs.

"The Lenient God" by Naomi Jacob is the story of Bill Warren, son of a small grocer in present day London. His desire for an education thwarted, Bill becomes a chauffeur, and then a bus driver. His family provides a Cockney atmosphere and some lovable characters.

Four other fiction volumes are on the list—"Starting Point" by Day-Lewis; "Time to Go," Shann; "Kindling," Norway; "Brazos," Taylor.

Barrie's Story of Himself.

"The Greenwood Hat" is a book which James M. Barrie wrote several years before his death. It was privately printed and copies were given to his close friends. Now it has been published for the general reading public. It is an account of Barrie himself, of a raw Scottish boy breaking into the literary world, and also provides a glimpse into the mind of a mature author. The book consists of a number of impressions of English life and customs which the young "James Anon" wrote for the St. James Gazette years ago.

"Tales of a Wayward Inn" by Frank Case relates his experiences during the past 30 years as owner and manager of the Algonquin hotel in New York City. Many celebrities are mentioned as having been guests and friends.

Included in this week's non-fiction are Frau Fannina Halle's "Women of the Soviet East," which is an account of the transfusion of women into the non-Russian, eastern territories of the Soviet Union.

Others are: "The Mentally Ill in America" by Deutsch; "Exploring the Heavens," Fisher; "Through the Telescope," Fath; "ABC of Agrobiology." Willcox; "ABC of Diesel Engines," Popular Science Monthly; "Food Technology," Prescott and Proctor; "National and Tate Galleries," Wilson; "Westward, High, Low and Dry," Hogner; "Captains Outrageous," Clark; "Lapland Journey," Sutherland; "Joaquin Murrieta," Paz; "Tale of Chicago," Masters; (Reference Book) "Original Lists of Persons of Quality Who Went from Great Britain to the American Plantations," Hotten.

A gift of the Tuesday Book club in memory of Helen Brown Holland is the latest book by Kenneth Roberts, "March to Quebec." It is composed of the journals of the members of Arnold's expedition which were compiled and annotated by the author during the writing of "Arundel." As a source book on a great military campaign "March to Quebec" is unique.

Amazon of Air Becomes Symbol Of Woman's New Status In Russia

Leads Feminine Fliers on Daring Non-Stop Hop to Near East.

MOSCOW — (AP) — For weeks Soviet Russia has been throwing its collective hat into the air for Valentina Stepanovna Grizodubova, 28, buxom Amazon of the civl air force.

She was commander of the airplane Rodina which, with an all-woman crew, flew non-stop from Moscow to the Far East, an air distance of 3,717 miles.

Valentina and her companions, Captain Polina Ossipenko and First Lieutenant Marina Raskova, took off just as the western European powers seemed about to plunge into war. But their flight was the big news of the week in Russia, especially after communication with the plane suddenly ceased and the nation for eight days was in doubt as to its fate.

A Triumph.

It finally developed the women had landed unharmed in a swamp near Komsomolsk. Their return to Moscow was a triumph.

Not only had they demonstrated again the capacity of Soviet flyers, their flight was a spectacular illustration of the status of woman in the Soviet Union. All three were "daughters of the people" such as never could have hoped to participate in an important venture under the Czars. Ossipendo came from a collective farm. Raskova is a musician's daughter.

As for Grizodubovna, one might almost say an airplane was her cradle. Her father, Stepan Grizodubova, was an airplane builder in the days when men who built flying-machines led a precarious financial existence. Her mother kept the wolf from the door by working as a dressmaker.

In Gorky Squadron.

In 1928 she entered a school for pilots: she was 18 when she received her license. Soon she was first among pilots of the Ossoaviachim (the voluntary organization for air and chemical defense).. She trained 86 pilots, then was assigned to the Gorky propaganda squadron.

She has established women's records for altitude, speed and distance, usually in light sport planes.

Between flights, she married an army flyer, Captain Victor Sokoloff; between flights, she became a mother Her two-year-old son, Valery, is nicknamed "Little Hawk."

The non-stop flight to the Far East doubtless was Grizodubova's greatest. She put Soviet women in the world spotlight.

Bantams Face Powerful Foe

Meet Team Beaten 4 Times in 45 Games Friday.

Playing in a benefit game at Orrville Friday night, the Mansfield bantam football players will meet an eleven with one of the best football records in the state. The Mansfield eleven meets the Wooster Harris Paints who have lost only four games in their last 45 contests.

The Paints will be highly favored over the Mansfield eleven because of their greater experience and their record for the past three years.

The Harris Paints will close their 1938 season at their home park at the fair grounds in Wooster Thanksgiving day at 2:30 when they meet the Cleveland Skippies for the third time this season. Wooster won at Wooster 6-0 and the Skippies took a 7-6 decision at Cleveland.

Ohio State League Prexy Under Fire

FREMONT—(U.P.)—Criticism of the policies of Paul Shank, Toledo attorney, as president of the Ohio State Baseball league was brewing today for expressions at a league meeting here Friday night.

Fostoria, Findlay and Fremont club officials were reported dissatisfied with promotional activities during the past season. Grover Hartley, Findlay manager; Fred Morgan, president at Fostoria, and Frank Anderson, president at Fremont, have been the chief critics.

PICARD SINKS 20-FOOT PUTT TO GAIN DEADLOCK

PINEHURST, N. C.—(INS)—Tommy Armour, Boca Raton, Fla., and Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., were tied with Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., and Jack Grout, Chicago, today in the 36-hole mid-south pro-pro best ball golf tournament at the Pinehurst Country club with cards of 132. Picard dropped a 20-foot putt on the home green to obtain a tie.

A three-way tie was narrowly averted as Jim Turnesa, Providence, and Jack Patroni, Shawnee, Del., came along at the end of the day needing a par four on the home hole for a 132, bunkered their second shots and took a 133 for a third-place tie with Felix Serafin, Scranton, and Terl Johnson, Norristown, Pa.

BETTING ODDS FAVOR APOSTOLI OVER CORBETT

NEW YORK—(INS)—With the betting odds ranging as high as 2½ to 1 and, reportedly, all the way to 3 to 1 for careful shoppers, Fred Apostoli today was a top-heavy favorite to beat Young Corbett III tomorrow night for the middleweight championship of San Francisco and New York.

What those odds are based on apparently is the fact that Apostoli is only 24 years old and Corbett is all of the 32 to which he confesses.

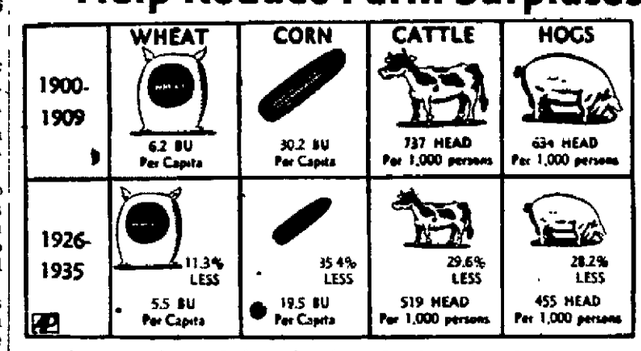
Old-Time Appetites Would Help Reduce Farm Surpluses



A comparison of two decades, showing the shrinkage in America's food consumption. Chart based on figures cited by Harry G. Davis, farm research man.

CHICAGO — (AP) — If people would eat as much as their forbears did, Harry G. Davis, director of the Farm Equipment Institute, believes farm surpluses wouldn't be such a troublesome problem.

Davis points to men motoring to work, children riding to school, housewives sweeping with electricity as examples of the modern easy life.

Less food is required to generate the energy for today's life, he says.

Davis cited figures showing the per capita consumption of wheat declined 1.3 per cent, from 6.2 bushels per person for the 1900-09 decade to 5.5 bushels for the 1926-35 decade, while per capita corn consumption dropped 35.4 per cent, from 30.2 bushels to 19.5.

He also reported that the average number of cattle on farms declined 29.6 per cent.

"At the beginning of the century," Davis said, "workmen used more energy. They didn't have the mechanical aids. Many walked to work and carried lunch buckets almost twice as large as they do nowadays. Working hours were longer, too.

"Thousands of children walked to school and home again. Housewives didn't have the electrical equipment they now use in their daily work.

"Naturally people do not burn up as much energy as formerly, and consequently do not consume as much food."

Davis said that some people believe the machine is responsible for surpluses.

"Most data available," he said, "indicate farmers have not kept pace with the growing population in production of most of their products. Instead, figures indicate under-consumption as one of the principal causes of surpluses."

AUTO CLUB TO DINE TOMORROW

200 Expected at Annual Meeting At Leland Hotel.

More than 200 persons are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Richland County Automobile club tomorrow evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, according to Frank Beverstock, secretary.

A turkey dinner at 6:30 p. m. will be followed by the annual business meeting and election of nine directors, and a floor show provided by the Gun Sun vaudeville booking agency.

At the close of the meeting the new board of directors will elect officers for the coming year.

EASY FOR WOLFE

Auditor Reports No Campaign Contributions, No Expenses.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe had no opposition in last week's election, so he spent nothing to be re-elected, his statement of expenditures to the county board of elections showed today.

The auditor, who was re-elected on the Democratic ticket without opposition, reported no campaign contributions and no expense.

The only other candidate who had reported today was Harry Maxwell of Lexington, who was defeated for state representative on the Republican ticket. He reported expenditures amounting to $55.65 and no contributions.

Candidates for county offices and state representative are required to report campaign expenditures and contributions to the county election board by Friday.

Rams Seek Fifth Grid Title In Six Years Friday Night

Ashland Cage Hopes Bright

Maybe Pittsburgh's Sincere

Winsper Turns Out Winner

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

ASHLAND college suffered a great deal of embarrassment in football this fall. The Eagles dropped seven straight ball games. Few of the games were even close.

Ashland takes up basketball in a couple of weeks, and followers of the school on the court are actually enthusiastic over the prospects for the season. They should be, too

"Hocky"

Coach Tony Lonero's basketeers may not win the Ohio conference cage title, but don't sell their chances short. The Eagles are virtually certain to be dangerous contenders.

Lonero will have the same team he piloted to the district championship at Ashland high school two years ago, not to mention a number of other players who can handle the leather. They should provide Ashland with winning ball teams for three years, at least.

By that time Ashland's reputation as a basketball school should automatically lure cage stars to the institution.

Former Ashland high cagers on the squad are Virgil Scobey, Bob Sprague, Chuck Hockensmith, Bud Plank and Kenny Gongwer. Mansfield basketball-goers well remember this quartet, and if they are as successful in college as they were in high school, they will be tops.

Other sophomore courtiers are Glenn Hartman and Leonard Carlisle of Shelby, James Richcreek, one of the greatest of recent Indiana high school products; Robert Shively, Richcreek's teammate at Nappanee, Ind., and Bob Heller, who spent two years on the Huron county title teams.

Holdovers to brighten the picture are Harry Dutka, Stub Morrison, Sam Cook, Cal Milligan, Don Sowers, Casey Hare and Sandy Sandrock.

Yessiree, things are brightening up at Ashland college, and a lot of those whippings on the gridiron will be avenged on the court.

Pitt's Strict About New Athletic Policy.

THIS WEEK'S refusal to recognize scholarship demands of freshman gridders was the third manifestation of official determination for a strict "non-professional" athletic policy at Pittsburgh university. So, perhaps. Pitt is really sincere in its program to de-emphasize football.

The first came last fall after the Panthers had been acclaimed almost unanimously as national champions. Almost a sure bet to participate in the Rose Bowl game, the team announced it was not interested in the coast trip. The action was attributed to the school's refusal to grant a demand for "spending money" to players eligible for a California trip.

The second demonstration came this fall when 18 sophomore squad members refused to practice because of "differences" with the Pitt business department. They demanded to know just how long, and hard they were expected to work on their various jobs around the building, and whether they could get wage advances.

Ed Winsper, who formerly handled athletics at Shelby high, is doing right well with his football team in Wooster this fall. If his Generals can take the measure of Coshocton Saturday, his Wooster team will be the first in 39 years to go through a season undefeated. Even if the Generals lose, the team will become the fourth to go through a campaign with one defeat. Here's luck for Saturday, Ed.

Teaches Swing at Villanova

CLIPPER SMITH . . . TEACHES SWING

Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith was one of Knute Rockne's original "watch charm" guards at Notre Dame. Weighing only 145 pounds, he made up with speed and toughness for what he lacked in size, and became noted as a downfield blocker.

After being graduated by Notre Dame in 1921, he went to Santa Clara where he established a record for longevity. He went to Villanova several years ago when Harry Stuhldreher migrated to Wisconsin.

Coach Smith always has been noted for the timing and rhythm of his teams. This year's Villanova team shows the perfection of a ballet in its precision. Some critics have called the Wildcats the "swing boys."

Villanova was undefeated and untied last year, and has not been beaten this year, though tied by South Carolina.

UCLA URGED TO RETAIN SPAULDING AS COACH

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A boom to keep Bill Spaulding as U. C. L. A.'s head football coach and an unofficial announcement Tom Lieb would get a new coaching contract at Loyola marked an upswing of alumni loyalties in Los Angeles today.

The Spaulding situation at U. C. L. A. took a definite turn when the university's alumni coaches club sent in a petition urging "Westwood Will's" retention as a football mentor and the hiring of full-time, instead of part-time assistants. Spaulding was due to be "elevated" to athletic director at the end of the season.

City League To Open Sked Monday, Dec. 5

Four Teams to Play Three Rounds This Season.

Four teams will comprise the roster of the City Class A basketball league when the circuit raises the curtain on the 1938 season Monday, Dec. 5, on the Mansfield Senior high gym court, it was announced by President Vern Jones at a meeting last night at the Y. M. C. A.

The four-team limit was approved at the meeting to enable the clubs to secure top-notch talent to bolster their championship ambitions. The quintets will play three rounds, with the champions of each round meeting in a three-game playoff for the league crown.

Sports Split Up.

With the defending championship Yuncker Sports outfit split up this season, all indications point to a nip-and-tuck race. Tom Farrell, Yuncker's star center, will play for the Elks lodge entry, while Al Stickler, ace forward, will romp again for the Sports.

Although the team personnels are not definite, the four cage machines stack up on fairly even terms

Yunckers will have Stickler, Harold Hayfer and possibly John Rees, Lexington high school coach. The Elks have Adam Brandt, Gene Zediker and Jack Miner in addition to Farrell.

In the Herrick Si-Speed lineup will be Goldsmith and Nana of Galion, the Herrick twins, Earl and Clarence, Howard Poole, Bob Bogantz, former Ontario high star, and Harold Boliantz.

Represent Westies.

Representing the Westinghouse are Bob Shade, George Boske, Ray Friday, Harry Ross and probably Bob Bride. Brownie Corcoran will manage the Westies

The City league schedule will be drawn up this week Another meeting of officials and team managers will be held at the Y at 7 p. m. Wednesday to complete plans for the opening night, designated as "Ladies' night."

Madison Host To Mt. Gilead

Fendrick Pleased With Mental and Physical Condition of Suburban Gridders for Final Tussle.

THE MEETING between the grid armies of Madison and Mt. Gilead high schools will again determine the championship of the Mid-State league Friday night when they collide under the Madison incandescents.

Friday's tilt marks the sixth game between the two schools and the sixth time that the league honors have hung on the outcome of the contest.

Coach Al Fendrick's Rams have been the winners in four of the five meetings to date to cinch as many titles, and they will go into Friday's affray the favorites.

The only defeat suffered by the Mansfield eleven in the series with Mit. Gilead came in 1935 when the great Bob Payne led the Indians to a 32 to 14 triumph.

Series Produces Thriller.

Virtually all of the games in the series have been sensational affairs. The Rams won in 1933 by a 25 to 0 score, but their margin of victory was only one point the next year, 14 to 13.

Madison won 30 to 0 in 1936 and was extended to come through the victor by a 19 to 14 count on a snow-covered field in Mt. Gilead last year.

Due to a cancellation, the title race this year presents an odd situation. Although without a victory, Mt. Gilead can win the crown Friday. Mt. Gilead's game with Bellville was cancelled and it played to a scoreless tie with Loudonville. The Loudonville game is the only one it has played this year.

Madison, on the other hand, has beaten both Bellville and Loudonville, and would have cinched the title with the victory at Bellville had the league title been determined on points instead of percentage as previously. This year with a smaller league it was decided to determine the title on percentage.

Although having played only one league game, Mt. Gilead has compiled a fairly decent record this season. Only two games have been dropped by the Indians, and they have not been scored on in their last four appearances.

According to Loudonville's coach, John Kerekes, Mt. Gilead has the strongest line of any club his team has faced this year. In only three games have opponents been able to score against the Indians, and two of these tilts were against Class A foes.

Tom England is the spearhead of the Mt. Gilead attack, which is run from short kick and single wing formations. Inside tackle thrusts have been the Indians' most effective ground gaining plays.

On the defense, Mt. Gilead em-

Nominates Willard Boy As State's No. 1 Soph

U-P Writer Says Langhurst Is Ohio's Keyman in Michigan Battle.

By JIM EMERSON

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—For the outstanding sophomore back of the year, Ohio State nominates James (Gentleman Jim) Langhurst, fullback.

This quiet-mannered young man, shy and gentlemanly everywhere except on the gridiron, is the No. 1 reason why the Bucks can tie for or win outright the 1938 Big Ten football championship — if they defeat Michigan next Saturday in Ohio stadium.

Michigan's Primed.

The pigskin-minded inhabitants of Columbus' High street, will admit that "if" involves a formidable condition. The Wolverines, beaten in only one game this fall under the new regime of Fritz Crisler and smarting from shutout triumphs by Ohio State since 1933, will be primed to dash the Ohio State title hopes.

But the High street "grid-bugs" will match one dollar against one dollar the Bucks turn the trick with Gentleman Jim in their lineup.

Gentleman Jim, they boast, is the smartest and most brilliant all-around sophomore back seen around these parts in the past 10 years and in another season they may extend the time limitation.

In seven games, Langhurst has lugged the ball 87 times and gained 378 yards from scrimmage, an average of 4.3 yards. On only seven attempts has he lost ground, a loss totaling 17 yards. He has scored eight touchdowns, three against Chicago, three against Illinois and one each against Southern California and New York U., to lead the Big Ten in this department.

The 189-pound sophomore from Willard, O., not only carries the ball more often than other Bucks but serves as chief linebacker on defense and in this role probably saved Ohio State from defeat against Northwestern.

Taking over the linebacking job for the first time in that third game of the season, Gentleman Jim performed the duties so well Northwestern had to settle for a scoreless tie although pushing around the Bucks, 16 first downs to six.

When Jim reported for football practice Sept. 10, his highest hope was to become the first understudy to Johnny Rabb, veteran Ohio State fullback and spearhead of the Buck attack. On Sept. 24, one week before the season opened, Rabb suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury and was declared sidelined for the season.

Coach Francis Schmidt elevated Langhurst to the varsity fullback job and the 19-year-old Willard lad never relinquished it.

He's Smart, Alert.

Despite his weight, he starts fast and utilizes a potent stiff-arm to advantage. In both offensive and defensive formations Langhurst performs with smartness and alertness. He has intercepted five passes and returned them for gains totaling 85 yards besides taking part in 50 per cent of the Ohio State tackles.

The role of leading scorer is not a new one for Jim. He played four years of football for Willard high school, a school of 400 students, and tallied 130 points in his final season.

His current scoring achievements don't excite Jim. He said his biggest thrill this fall came when he tossed a lateral pass to Don Scott against Illinois last Saturday. Scott, another sophomore, ran 45 yards for a touchdown with Langhurst administering a vital block to an Illini back.

Carl Heilman's 685 Paces Doubles Loop

Duke Weber, Dale Cleckner Whip Up 1254 Count; Hanrahan Leads Westinghouse With 658.

CARL HEILMAN rapped the sticks for a flashy 685 total to gain individual honors in the City Doubles league at the Meder alleys last night. Heilman whipped together games of 201, 244 and 240 as he and his partner, Neil Swank, rolled a second high 1206, which swept their series with Eugene Funston and Harold Geiger.

Duke Weber and Dale Cleckner, with respective totals of 638 and 616, accounted for games of 406, 425 and 423 for a high 1254 and a clean sweep over Cecil Burdett and Murph Hanna.

In the other matches, Art Shepherd and Cliff Forsythe came through with an 1143, good for three wins over Jack Applan and Winnie Cleckner, and Mike Meder and Joe Cheney took two games from Sonny Meder and Pete Grohol.

Team scoring laurels were annexed by the Refrigeration Machines, who blasted the uprights for a 2783 count. Led by Johnny Perrine's 603, the Machines, who started out with a 988, swept their series with Shipping No. 2 ploys the 6-2-2-1 and 5-3-2-1 defenses. These are the same set-ups with which Loudonville caused the Rams so much trouble a couple of weeks ago.

Expects Tough Battle.

Coach Fendrick is well satisfied with the mental and physical condition of his club. "We're not underestimating Mt. Gilead," Fendrick said today. "We figure on a tough battle and our boys are in condition."

The Rams will be particularly anxious to go to town in this game as it is their last of the season and it offers them their last chance to protect the scoring lead they hold in the state.

Judging from the interest attracted by the game, a crowd as large as any to see the Rams in action this season will pack Madison field. The game is scheduled at 8 p. m.

APPOINTED HEAD OF GIRL SCOUTS

New York Woman Named Part Time Director; Sets Up Permanent Office.

The Girl Scout movement in Mansfield advanced another step this week with the establishment of a permanent office and the hiring of a trained director.

Miss Eleanor Bond, Brooklyn, N. Y., opened the new office this week at 702 Farmers Bank building, and will serve as director in Mansfield, alternating her time with the Lima Girl Scouts, Mrs. Roger A. Black, commissioner of the Girl Scout council announced.

The Mansfield Girl Scouts were allowed approximately $800 by the Mansfield Community Fund last spring, and since this was insufficient for a full time worker, it was decided to employ a part time director, Mrs. Black said.

Miss Bond is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, majoring in social work, psychology and physical education. She was a Girl Scout worker in Erie, Pa., before coming to Mansfield.

Her duties for the next few months will be concerned largely with training local troop leaders and organization. There are ten troops in Mansfield at the present, and two more are being organized. The personnel of the Girl Scouts in the city has increased from 84 to 165 since last December when the Girl Scout council was formed.

TACKLESS CARPET STRIP

No More Tack Indentations In Your Carpet With This New Method

Appearance

Maxwell's Tackless Carpet Strip is the new and modern method of laying carpet, which eliminates the ugly tack-marks and dust-catching indentations. This new method insures that a perfect installation will be made with your carpet as level at the wall as it is in the center of the room.

Ease of Cleaning

Due to the fact that there are no indentations at the wall line, your cleaning device is able to reach every inch of carpet and clean it thoroughly. In cases where the carpet is taken up to be cleaned, the carpet is merely unpinned, sent to the cleaners and restretched on the strip again.

This New Method of wall to wall carpet installation is exclusive at Maxwell's.

"NO ACHES FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS," SAYS CHURCH SUPT.

Perrysville lady does daily work with no sign of former troubles since Vendol acted as diuretic to kidneys and relieved constipation.

MRS. C. E. LINE

If you need a diuretic to your kidneys or suffer from constipation which causes food wastes to back up in your colon and upsets your stomach, many outward signs may show up, among which may be backache, leg pains and other sufferings popularly spoken of as rheumatism. When this occurs it will pay you to visit the Vendol Man who is now daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and 4th Sts., and Vendol may be just the thing to help you just as it did Mrs. C. E. Line, well known and highly respected lady residing on Route 2, Perrysville, Ohio, near here who holds the honorable position of Supt. of the M. E. Church Sunday School. Read her enthusiastic recommendation, which follows:

"For years I have suffered from constipation and sluggish kidneys and here recently I was miserable from the awful aches in the muscles of my back, arms, shoulders and sides. Everything I tried to do was an effort and I was so sore and stiff I couldn't even bend over to pick up anything off the floor.

"This condition made me so nervous that I hadn't been able to get a good night's sleep in a long time, then next morning I felt so tired and worn out, I wondered how I could ever get my housework done.

"Another trouble was a sour, acid upset stomach that made me feel tight and bloated after eating.

"Many people I know were taking Vendol so, I got some and, sure enough, Vendol was what I needed. It got my bowels moving like a charm, speeded up the kidney action and my improvement could be felt day by day. The pains are gone for the first time in years, my stomach feels comfortable even after a hearty meal, nerves are so calm that I sleep the whole night through. I feel so good that I really owe a debt to Vendol, so hope my recommendation will be a help to others who suffer like I used to."

You can't go wrong in giving Vendol a chance to help you the same way. Its Roots, Herbs, and Alkalines will make you FEEL better and LOOK better. Visit the Vendol Man (formerly at Weinberger's) who now has headquarters at the Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts., and learn all about it. Most all druggists sell Vendol; come today—there is no charge.

$1,191 PLEDGED AS ASHLAND'S DRIVE STARTS

Community Fund Campaign Off to Good Start; $26,000 Goal Fixed.

ASHLAND—With a collection of pledges and cash totaling more than $200 more than last year, Ashland's tenth annual Community Chest drive got off to an excellent start. A total of $1,191 in pledges were reported to Chest headquarters after the first day of the local drive.

Although the first day's pledges amounted to more than that of a similar period of time last year, there is still $24,809 needed to reach the campaign goal of $26,000.

Paul Scott made the first report of solicitations in the drive at headquarters. He is one of the volunteer workers in the fourth ward.

Chairman of the drive, J. Howard Culler today urged that the workers make a special effort to get pledge cards to the office early and to complete solicitations.

During the drive, the Chest headquarters are open until 11 p. m. to enable workers to report any solicitations made early in the evening. Progress in the campaign is being recorded on a huge thermometer at the corner of Main and Center streets.

CROWNED 'KING' OF NEW YORK'S AMATEUR CHEFS

Baruck, Radio Commentator, Wins With Lobster Dish in Field of 21.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Andre Baruch, CBS announcer and radio commentator, reigns today as king of New York's amateur cooks by virtue of a victory in a cooking contest for men held at the Hotel Governor Clinton.

Twenty-four men sliced, stewed, mixed and baked in the hotel's kitchen, each hoping that his pet masterpiece would win top favor from the judges—seven of New York's expert chefs and cooking authorities.

These cooks were labeled amateurs but their dishes, the judges agreed, were worthy of the best professional chef.

Baruch, the winner, explained his victory saying:

"All French men cook and I was born in France, so . . ."

His dish, lobster a la De Zutter, came out of a private contest between Michael De Zutter, a famous chef, and himself. "We'd stand for hours over a stove, trying new combinations," Baruch said.

Zabaglione, an "Italian dessert with a French flavor," won second prize for its creator, Stanley R. Ketcham, jr., assistant counselor of Moody's Investors' Service, in New York.

"My wife doesn't like desserts so I have to concoct my own," he said in explaining his victory.

'Pretzel Spaghetti.'

Major H. C. Brenizer, stationed at Fort Slocum, N. Y., who learned to cook "because the old army food was so terrible," won third place for his Pretzel Alley spaghetti and army Russian dressing.

"My spaghetti is named for a peculiar alley somewhere in the general direction of Davenport, Ia., the major said.

"My dishes wore out one collar and took three hours. My wife thinks I'm a swell dining room cook . . . practically the equivalent of a back-seat driver.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer, noted humorist, showed up at the contest and explained that his dish, Boula Boula Baer, is made as follows:

"Take the white of an artichoke, add an egg at short intervals, then pour in four quarts of Maderia wine. Strain all this through a cane bottom chair, put on a steam radiator and allow to cool all winter. This dish is for six people who are not talking to each other."

Capt. Clifford McGregor, who has recently returned from an Arctic expedition, showed up in a fur suit to concoct his Explorers' Special, a Chocolate pie with Brazil nut crust and topped with whip cream.

"We took 250 pounds of Brazil nuts with us and we had to use them somehow. We whipped canned milk for the cream," Captain McGregor said.

Good Ol' Goulash.

Walter Slezak, star of "I Married An Angel," cooked his "Dinner in a Dish," saying "I hope I don't have to eat it." He sampled some hunter's goulash made by Paul S. L. Hilken and asked: "Where is that man? I want to marry him!"

Louis "Wireless" Zeltner, public relations director in New York and noted gourmand, finished his masterpieces early and spent the remainder of the time appreciatively sampling those of his compatriots.

Jolly Bill Steinke, New York Daily Mirror cartoonist and advocate of Pennsylvania Dutch cooking, suffered the only casualty of the contest, picking up a pan he thought was cold. His burn did not interfere with his cooking.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1938.

Odd about Thanksgiving. It comes on the earliest possible date this year and on the latest next year.

Announcement that the circus is to stage a come-back next season co-ordinates nicely with indications of revival of the GOP elephant.

Claim is made that "next to the largest amount of money in history is now in circulation in this country"—but the circulation doesn't seem as rapid.

Profit-Sharing Idea Grows.

GRADUALLY, out of the appearance of differences between "capital" and "labor," there may be developed a practicable and uniformly operative plan of profits-distribution which will be recognized as fair to all parties concerned.

Experiments in profit-sharing are not new but the thought back of this idea has probably not until recently gained the widespread attention it is now receiving.

The bonus plan of Westinghouse, operative for the past several years, provides a local example of profit-sharing being carried into effect in a large industrial organization.

Announcement this week by General Motors Corp., of an "income security plan," intended to assure employes a spread of income throughout the year, is another evidence of increasing regard of employers for the welfare of employes.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, has devised a plan for sharing industrial profits, which he proposes to put up to congress at the coming session.

Misunderstandings and abuses have been more responsible for adverse criticism of the capitalistic system than any inherent faults in the system itself, which has made possible higher standards of living in this country than exist anywhere else in the world.

It has become increasingly evident during the past few years that there can be no substantial prosperity without a vast amount of private employment, a large share of which must be industrial.

Capital is essential to the operation and expansion of industries. Whatever interferes with investments in industry and business retards progress, reduces employment and lowers buying power of the millions whose earnings must be depended upon to purchase the products of 'industry—luxuries as well as necessities.

The rapidity with which this country has advanced in science, invention and mass production may excuse an earlier failure to realize that mass distribution is also an essential part of this program—and that distribution is dependent on ability to buy.

The time now seems ripe, however, for much sound thought to be given to problems associated with providing private employment and increasing the purchasing power of additional millions of men and women in the United States, so that all who are able and willing to work may be placed in position to share more largely in the products of industry—thus making greater contribution to the general welfare and bringing further improvement to American standards of living.

Those Christmas Savings Checks.

WITHIN another couple of weeks Mansfield banks will mail out more than $200,000 in Christmas savings checks to the almost 5,000 persons in this city and vicinity who have availed themselves of this method of systematic saving.

Those who know will tell you that it is a very pleasant experience to find a check in the mail around December 1—but they will probably also tell you that there were some weeks during the year when it was not easy to put aside the money for Christmas savings and that, occasionally, they had to deprive themselves of something they wanted, in order to put the money in a bank.

Savings, small or large, represent a sacrifice of something wanted immediately, in order to have money in reserve to spend at some future time—possibly to supply a greater need.

Habits of systematic saving and intelligent buying evidence thrift and foresight which go far in explaining why some people "get along" and others do not.

Spending beyond reasonable expectation of income has long been recognized as poor policy. Budgeting spending and saving to conform to income has aided in solving many problems of family finances.

Making Fan Mail Useful.

A NEWSPAPER radio critic recommends that broadcasting systems set up offices, or clearing houses, for the purpose of receiving written applause and criticism from listeners. At the present time, he says, if dialers have some complaint to make, they send it vaguely to the general address of the chain station, where it may not come to the attention of those who might do something about it. Such letters, he says, "are slow to gather weight."

To make these offices genuinely useful, they would need to be in charge of persons with intelligence, taste and judgment, who could translate the letters into a clear statement of improvements requested, and recommend alteration or elimination of offending programs.

This, the critic emphasizes, would not be a censorship bureau, but merely an assurance to radio listeners that their letters would reach the proper authorities and receive respectful attention.

Fear For King's English.

ERUDITE members of the British parliament are said to be alarmed lest the King's English be corrupted during His Majesty's visit to the United States next summer. They mean the speech of George VI himself. Americans have already corrupted the language, they think.

One of these gentlemen, an Oxford man, author of books about museums and other learned subjects, even made a speech in the house of commons the other day after George had announced his acceptance of this country's invitation. Said the M. P.:

"Already, through radio and films, we are acquiring what might almost be described as a transatlantic idiom."

Fortunately for the King, the American President and his wife speak quite good English, and might even make a special effort on this occasion.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — From Spain, China, and the United States army it is possible now to assemble a good picture of what will be necessary to protect our big cities from air attack in the next war—to the extent they can be protected.

The stage was set at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for a sample demonstration of one of the most pretentious air shows the army ever prepared. At the fort were assembled all the anti-aircraft guns east of the Rocky mountains (it is a tiny handful, if you want to know). Assembled also were fleets of bombers, fast pursuit and combat planes from all over the country.

The problem was simply to test out how to beat off a strong enemy bombing raid on an important air station. For pratical purposes it could be Pittsburgh's steel mills, or the Warren, Pa., oil fields.

Over a zone nearly 200 miles in all directions from the fort, observers were posted in church steeples, fire towers, on water tanks or other elevated points from which they scanned the skies for approaching planes. Every eight miles there was such an observation post so that nearly half of North Carolina was checkerboarded with watching men.

* * *

Civilians Lend a Hand.

TWO thousand civilians manned the observation posts. Each volunteered his services for the test, just as he might be called upon to do in time of war.

Each had telephone connections directly with the central control room of the defense center. Two miles outside the fort a ring of anti-aircraft batteries was stationed. The batteries were 2½ miles apart so that a fleet of planes coming from any direction would be under fire of at least two batteries of six guns each. The guns can shoot high explosive shells six miles—30,000 feet—into the air.

Two rings of machine guns circled the fort, while batteries of search lights were spotted far enough away to illuminate the planes the moment they came within range.

Far out on the rim of lookout stations the observers reported the approach of bombing planes by telephone to central headquarters. Pursuit planes were ordered into the air, or, if already aloft, they were told where the planes had been sighted.

Other observers reported the planes. This sometimes gave direction of attack, but not necessarily. Enemy planes may fly for a time at a tangent to the city, then swing around from another direction to line up bomb sights on the target. Other observers reported in to check the line of flight. An observer far on the other side of the defense net may report planes, indicating a bombing attack from two directions.

* * *

Fighters Follow Bombers.

SOMETIMES the bombers were accompanied by their own pursuit and combat planes. Some of these may engage the defense planes while others "hedge hop" close to the ground to attack the anti-aircraft guns or disable search light batteries. To meet this low-flying attack is the job of the rings of machine guns. The defense would order a "black-out" to blanket all lights; but enemy planes would drop huge flares.

Experience in Spain and China has been that bombers, once under anti-aircraft fire, usually let go their bombs and heard for home, regardless of whether they are able to sight on their targets. Japanese ships lie safely at anchor within easy range of Chinese air fleets. Munitions factories both in government and insurgent Spain continue to operate, protected by their ground and air weapons.

The whole defense plan depends on quick detection of the attack. If the bombers get within 100 miles of the target, less than a half hour is left to determine the direction of their attack, their altitude, and to get pursuit planes into the air to stop them.

A problem not yet solved is how to set up a defense net for sea coast cities. There aren't any water tanks, fire towers or tall trees in the ocean, and studding the sea for 200 miles out with ships would be quite a task.

And can observers spot planes 20,000 feet in the air, at night?

A Million Cyclists.

After a decade of slow but steady growth in the popularity of cycling, it is announced that last year as many bicycles—approximately one million—were marketed in the United States as there were sold in 1899, the peak of the bicycle boom of the gay '90's. Of course the comparison loses force when it is considered that the population of the country then was only 75 millions against 130 millions today. But, even discounting this angle, a million is an impressive number of cyclists to be running loose on streets and highways already loaded with motor car traffic.

It is obvious that any safety program for the future must take this mighty army of bicycle riders into account. The fact that many more of them are children and young people makes the problem all the more acute.

Some of the larger cities are moving to meet the problem by constructing cycle paths at public expense. New York city, taking the lead, has more than 30 miles of such facilities.—Columbus Dispatch.

INTERCEPTION, FUMBLE OR TOUCHDOWN?

Consider Taft and Dewey for 1940

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republican headquarters' strategists already are suggesting Taft and Dewey as a good G. O. P. ticket in 1940. If Dewey had beaten Governor Lehman in New York of course he would be the one set to be mentioned for first place. In that event Taft probably would not be getting any mention at all. Dewey and Taft wouldn't sound so well. Dewey is so young that Taft would be placed in rather an undignified positions as a tail to the Dewey kite. And it isn't desirable to have anything undignified about a presidential-and-vice presidential combination. Taft and Dewey, however, would be absolutely all right.

Taft

Robert A. Taft is of adequately mature White House years. He has plenty of standing and historic background. Some folk say he's abler than his father was—and the latter had ability enough, even though he didn't make a very successful president. Robert A. comes from an excellent presidential state, too. Ohio isn't quite the equal of New York or Pennsylvania in a political sense, but it's big enough and its geography and record are quite o. k. Moreover Taft licked a sitting senator, Robert J. Bulkley, who was a strong candidate; a highly creditable performance.

Dewey's Race Close.

Yes, Taft won, which Dewey didn't. Yet Dewey lost by so narrow a margin, against the most formidable opponent the Democrats could put up to fight him, that his defeat was a near-victory. He can be a dandy tail to Taft's kite.

The mighty states of Ohio and New York hooked up together! Mid-west and the east and the farther western sticks (for Dewey, now a New Yorker, originally hails from Michigan) aligned. Wise middle age (Taft's) and fiery youth (Dewey's) in partnership! It's almost an ideal commingling.

Nevertheless, 1940 is quite a distance ahead.

The Republicans gained considerable ground the other day, but the off-party nearly always does in mid-term elections. There's more than a chance that the Democrats' losses will tend to consolidate the survivors.

Besides, it's the consensus of political opinion (including Republican opinion) that November 8's result doesn't signify much diminution in President Roosevelt's personal popularity. It's the old story—"We don't like all his methods, but we do like his objectives."

When it comes to 1940 the "solid south" evidently will be as Democratically solid as usual. It may be anti-New Deal in congress, but it shows no indications of turning Republican at the polls. If there's a decisive switch in partisanly voting sentiment in 1940 it will have to be north of the Mason-Dixon line. And it will have to be a mightly formidable switch to upset President Roosevelt, should he run again.

But suppose he doesn't run again? Ah! that would be different. I'd surmise that he'll HAVE to run again. Well, a third term campaign must count against him. He never can be re-elected as overwhelmingly as he won in 1932 and 1936, but I'd guess he'd win. Perhaps, if he does re-run and re-win, he'll have an unfriendly congress against him. But I'm betting that he'll be popularly powerful, all the same.

City Folks' Lunkheadedness.

Before the last election most newspaper prophets talked of Republican versus Democratic "weather."

The theory is that the average farmer is a Republican. If the weather's bad he stays home on election day; the roads into town are muddy and he gets wet.

This used to be true.

Now he piles out into a nice, water-proof automobile, drives to the polls over a concrete road, picks up some neighbors on they way and they all cast their ballots and get back home comfortably in less than the time they used to spend in hitching up a team.

Having to hire a taxi, the "city feller's" vote costs him something.

Does the farmer vote? He does. Does the "city feller?" Not necessarily, unless he owns a flivver. I admit that generally he does, but not as 100 per cent as farmers do.

Health Advice

Your Autonomic Nervous System.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DURING the last few weeks I have been describing the mechanisms which make the body continue to function as a living organism. The astonishing thing is that all this goes on automatically. The food is digested for us, the digestive juices are poured out, our lungs breathe regularly, the blood mixes the food and air, the heart pounds along and the blood vessels distribute the blood to all parts of the body, allowing just enough for its momentary needs, and then the kidneys and lungs and skin get rid of the waste products.

All this is done if we are in good health, without the least friction, so that we are kept in a state of good feeling. And it is all done without the necessity of one taking any thought whatever.

Would Spoil It.

In fact, if we did take thought it would probably spoil the whole thing. There is the fable of the centipede who was asked which leg he moved first in progressing. He had always done it automatically and when he got to thinking about it, he got all tied up.

There are lots of people like this centipede. They get worried about their heart beat or their intestines moving, and begin to try to fix them sometimes with medicine. They end up almost invariably in a terrible shape, unhappy and inefficient.

To a certain extent, all these organs work automatically, but there is the need for some co-ordination between them. This is accomplished by one of the most intricate and beautiful systems in the body—the autonomic nervous system.

In order to understand this, we must go back to rather primitive forms of animal life. An earthworm, for instance, carries on exclusively as a vegetative organism. It has no brain to do any thinking, no eyes, no ears to receive impressions of the outside world, so it exists as a digestive tube, surrounded by an outer wall of skin and muscles and a circulatory and excretory system.

Control Functions.

If you dissect an earthworm you will find scattered about, usually closely connected with the digestive tube, some masses of nerve tissue which send fibers to each other and all the organs. These ganglia, receiving impulses of heat and cold and position, control automatically the earthworm's functions.

This old automatic nervous system developed in animal life long before the higher nervous centers appeared.

It is represented in man by a series of centers and ganglia that lie mostly outside the skull and vertebral column. Its fibers communicate with each other and then fibers go to all the blood vessels, glands and involuntary muscles all over the body. Your saliva secretion, your tears, your perspiration, the movements of your heart and your intestines, the secretion of your bile, are all more or less under the control of this sentinel.

A Farmer's Diary

Two Mothers.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A SHORT trip on a railroad train the other afternoon, gave me the chance for rare and pleasant observation. The rear seats of the coach were occupied, so I walked up near the front and sat in a vacant seat, to the left. Outside the window, the far landscape moved, while objects near at hand flew rapidly.

Within the aisle, and about the cushioned seats, two little boys of three or less, were playing, unmindful of the swaying, rocking train. Their faces beamed with mischief and adventure. They ran after one another, playing hide and seek behind the high backs of the seats, or trying to crawl beneath. When the brakeman called the next station, the little fellows followed after and called out, too. They mimicked the whistle of the speeding engine.

In the seat in front of me, across the aisle from each other, the mothers of these children sat, and carried on a conversation that I could not help but hear.

"You are from the South, aren't you?" said the first, kindly, in a cultured voice.

"Yes ma'am," replied the other, in a southern drawl. 'This here's the first time I've done rode on a Northern train. It's so new and clean. I like it. I've been lookin' forward to this trip," she added. "It's 80 miles, and we're half way, now."

The other smiled. "Your little boy is enjoying it, too. How old is he?"

"Three, and two months."

"Mine was three yesterday. And did you make that little suit your boy is wearing? It's so nicely knitted, and it fits him perfectly."

"It's the first time he's done wore it. I kept it for this trip. I'm glad you like it."

"I've never learned to knit and sew," said her companion. 'I wish I had. It's a real accomplishment."

Two mothers of sons. One was the wife of a western university professor. The other was a colored housemaid for a family in St. Petersburg.

Listen, World!

Choose a Job That Hurts.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DO YOU want to stay young, active, eager and magnetic? Want to keep your enthusiasms and your place in the Big Parade? Want to be as vital at 60 as you were at 16?

It can be done. It has been done. There's one way of doing it—and only one:

Make life hard for yourself!
Keep life hard for yourself!
Choose a job that hurts!

This, of course, isn't the sort of a job most of us are looking for. Anything but! We want a soft snap—easy hours—easy pay, no interference or difficult demands. We are trained to desire that sort of a job when we're youngsters. Constantly we hear of "lucky people" who have jobs like that. If, eventually, we landed such a job for ourselves, we think we're sitting pretty. But as a matter of fact, we couldn't be sitting worse.

There's nothing that will put you out of the running quicker than a soft snap.

Minds need difficulty in their schedules just as bodies need roughage in their diet.

You can't keep physically fit without exercise, fresh air, cold water, coarse, wholesome food. You can't keep mentality fit without conflict, criticism, danger, disappointment, failure, humiliation and constant, ever-lasting pressure. Grit in your food keeps fat off your waistline; grief in your work keeps it off your brain. Make things easy for a man, protect him from all trouble—and he becomes just so much complacent beef-on-the-hoof.

If you want to keep young and fit, pick a program that hurts.

And this applies to marriage, which to be successful, should be perfectly happy. But nothing could be worse for the average human than to find a mate who always adores and protects, and never criticizes performance. This is particularly bad for women who have little contact with the world, save through their husband. Such women invariably become conceited, selfish, intolerant—and thoroughly miserable.

An easy life is never a happy nor a healthy one. It has no perspective, nothing to stimulate it, nothing to make it proud. The most petted and protected people are always the most peevish.

Keep hustling! That's the first law of life for every living thing. Don't let yourself be comfortable. Don't let yourself feel safe. Constantly set up more difficult and dangerous tasks for yourself. Never let yourself say, "Well, now I can take things easy. The minute you begin to take things easy, that minute you're crooked! When you stop doing, you start dying.

You may not know you're dying, stranger, but it's a cinch that everyone else will!

Ohio Anecdotes

STATE EMBLEMS

The state of Ohio has its official state bird, state flower and state flag—all expressly designated on the statute books.

The general assembly in 1902 provided for a pennant-shaped flag designed by John Eisenmann, architect.

As a tacit compliment to President William McKinley, the 1904 General Assembly designated the scarlet carnation as the floral emblem of the state. The resolution read, in part: "To him it was a daily companion, then for its beauty, its fragrance and its fitness, let it be adopted as the state flower of Ohio."

Not until 1933, did the legislature provide the state with an official bird—the Cardinal.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—For the life of me I can not understand why Sinclair Lewis wants to be an actor. He is rich. He is famous. He is a Nobel prize winner. The libraries of the world are littered with his novels, most of which are excellent, one of which comes close to greatness.

But now he wants to put on paint and stand behind footlights and essay a chore in which he can hardly be more than mediocre. The woods are full of actors these days, good actors, capable actors. But most of them were born actors and couldn't be anything else if they tried. Sinclair Lewis now wants to move into this world. He thinks he knows a lot about the theater, about acting, but he doesn't. He will find this out in due time.

* * *

THIS acting bug got to him about five years ago, and he has been making eyes at the theater ever since. Perhaps that is why his latest novel, "The Prodigal Parents," was disappointing and a complete about-face from anything he had previously done. As far as the stage goes Lewis' only play until a year or so ago was "Jayhawker" which he co-authored and in which Fred Stone starred.

Then he wrote "It Can't Happen Here," and assisted in its dramatization. The PWA federal theater put it on and it received fair notices.

This summer Mr. Lewis turned actor with relish and appeared in two Summer theater presentations of "It Can't Happen Here." This was in New England and the critics were inclined to be lenient. They are sometimes over-tolerant in the summer theaters. They become assassins when you get on Broadway.

With the laurels of his red barn experiences behind him Mr. Lewis is back in New York, and now comes the announcement that he is turning actor for fair and will star in a new play written by himself. It will probably be in rehearsals soon and with him will be Fay Wray, and also, Diana Barrymore, John Barrymore's 17-year-old daughter who will be making a debut.

* * *

THE new Lewis play is called "Angela Is Twenty-Two," and it has to do with a doctor who falls in love with one of his patients. The tall, angular Mr. Lewis, who likes to be called Red, explains that the play is "a love story which is a pentagon rather than a triangle." It takes place in a fair-sized American city whose geography is uncertain.

No doubt Sinclair Lewis has been greatly influenced by the success his novels have had as dramatizations. There was "Dodsworth" which starred Walter Huston, and "Main Street" and also "Elmer Gantry." Mr. Lewis is a fine writer and an after dinner speaker of drawling eloquence. He is a man of temperament and occasionally indulges in face slappings. He is married to the talented Dorothy Thompson, political columnist and lecturer. He lives in a beautiful home in Bronxville and seems to have a grand time tinkering around the place.

But I think the creases are going to be out of his pants when he faces a debut audience on Broadway. The first nighters may have on dancing pumps, but the critics will be wearing boots with big hobnails.

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

1. Why is it harder to fly from Europe to America than it is to fly the other way?
2. What animal runs fastest?
3. Is there a test to show if milk has been watered?

Words of Wisdom.

Of all marvelous things, perhaps there is nothing that angels behold with such supreme astonishment as a proud man.—Colton.

Hints on Etiquette.

"Accidents will happen" at the table, as elsewhere. If you drop something — spoon, fork, knife, napkin—in a restaurant or in a home where there are servants, let it lie until the servant or waiter picks it up. If there are no servants or waiters, pick it up yourself.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Because of the nature of the winds which are created by the motion of the earth and the heat of the sun, the passage from east to west is harder than from west to east.
2. The Indian cheetah or hunting leopard; this applies only to short distance runs.
3. The Babcock test to determine the amount of butter fat in milk will indicate if milk has been watered.

1 IN 10 COUPLES PATCH UP THEIR DOMESTIC WOES

Figures Reveal 16 of 160 Suits for Divorce Filed Since Jan. 1 Have Been Dropped.

One of every 10 Richland county couples who have taken their domestic difficulties into the divorce court so far this year "patched up" their quarrel before the case was heard and decided to start over again.

Court records show 16 of the 160 divorce suits filed since Jan. 1, were dismissed on the application of the person who filed the suit, usually the wife.

The advice of Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston helped to bring reconciliation in a number of the cases, although the divorce statistics fail to show the drama that often is enacted in Judge Huston's office on the top floor of the courthouse.

Before and after divorce actions are filed Judge Huston often acts in the unofficial capacity of an adviser for troubled wives and husbands.

In a number of cases the divorce idea is dismissed even before the suit is filed," he said.

Misunderstandings Blamed.

"Frequently, a misunderstanding over a minor matter or the flaring of a temper will stir thoughts of divorce which are quickly dismissed when the quarreling pair has had time to think it over," Judge Huston asserted.

"Only when there is definitely no chance for a reconciliation is a divorce granted, and it's not granted then if I know there's a third party waiting outside the courtroom for the husband or wife to be freed," he added.

In a recent case, Judge Huston withheld disposition of the suit when he learned the husband who was seeking the divorce was engaged to marry the third time as soon as he obtained his second decree.

"Financial troubles—the wrong use of money rather than too little of it—liquor, and an unwillingness to make concessions are the major complaints in divorce actions," the judge pointed out.

Wives file more suits than husbands and the grounds in most of the cases are neglect and cruelty, court records show.

Decrees have been granted in exactly half of the 160 divorce suits filed so far in 1938, while 16 were dismissed by the plaintiff, seven by Judge Huston, and 57 are still pending

Contest Proves Women Surpass Men as Guessers

ITHACA, N. Y.,— (INS) —That women can outguess men was demonstrated by the results of a guessing contest offered recently by the New York State College of Forestry at the New York State Fair in Syracuse The object was to guess the length of paper in two rolls of newsprint such as is commonly used in printing of newspapers.

These rolls of white paper stood 68 inches high and were 33 inches in diameter. The weight of one roll was 1,349 pounds. The weight of the other was 1,353 It took 1.6 cords of four-foot wood to make the two rolls of newsprint.

There were 1,700 guesses Those who thought they knew handed in estimates that ran all the way from 6.5 to 9,000,000 feet. Some contestants submitted their opinions in square feet and cubic feet. The first three prizes were won by women.

Mother's Standby in Treating CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

If your children keep coming down with nasty little colds all winter, use Vicks VapoRub these three simple ways.

✓ For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action relieves local congestion—eases muscular soreness or tightness—helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

✓ For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, trickles slowly down—bathes the throat with soothing medication. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

✓ For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested ways to relieve the misery of colds.

Book of the Week

"Lords of the Press,"
By George Seldes; (Messner: $3).

* * *

GEORGE SELDES' new book, "Lords of the Press", can only be written about by a newspaperman in the light of the latter's own experience. Hence the following.

On putting it down, the writer's first desire was to find a nearby wailing wall and go to it. This was because—with the best material in the world lying about his feet—Mr. Seldes picked up the wrong samples.

It is not that he has written about the wrong men (although there are amazing omissions such as the Balls of Indiana, the "Kansas City Star" and Tammen and Bonfils in Denver. These are either not mentioned (along with many other important newspapers or newspaper "lords") or are present only in occasional lists of this or that.

Rather it is that Mr. Seldes has written what should be an impartial study from a point so far to the left that—like a movie seen from the wrong angle—everyone appears a tall, looming figure of horror.

Mr. Seldes thus makes wicked old curmudgeons out of some men whose chief sin seems to be a determined effort to make a profit.

He thinks, in effect if not from explicit statement, that the profit motive should be pulled out of American journalism. Again he may be right, although it would be a job for a super-Einstein.

As for the sizzling fact upon which this conclusion rests—Mr. Seldes discovers anew that Mr. Hearst is "unspeakable," that Roy Howard has scuttled the old Scripps policies, that Paul Block nurses a Napoleon complex in a private railroad car, that Bovard quit the St. Louis Post-Dispatch because he was too "left" for it, that Patterson of the New York "Daily News" is politically "confused," that McCormick of the Chicago Tribune is a "labor baiter," that Moe Annenberg furnished spoons for the American housewife, that the New York Times finds bumps even in the middle of the road, that Washington correspondents have a heck of a time, that Bill Carney, the Irish representative of the New York Times in Spain, favors Franco—and so on.

When these things are true they point a familiar moral. When they appear true because of the angle from which they are viewed they point a different moral. That's about all we want to say.—By J. S.

States in its rearmament propaganda."

The newspaper Lokalanzeiger, headlining the phrase "Roosevelt's lust for power," charged the president with seeking to realize his aims by strengthening his own position "after his recent election defeats."

The newspaper Mittag attacked President Roosevelt today as "the garrulous president" in connection with the pan-American conference in Lima, which it charged the United States would use solely to enhance its power.

"As the eighth of December, and with it the opening of the eighth pan-American conference at Lima, draws nearer, all the more garrulous doest the president of the United States of North America, Mr. Roosevelt show himself," the newspaper said.

"Of course he expects that, just as in 1936, the presidency of the conference will fall to him. For months he has given full play to his gigantic agitation and advertisement apparatus.

"The aim is to hammer into South American nations—in the interests of huge North American capital investments—that their entire well being lies only 'under protection and auspices of the Star Spangled Banner.'

"In addition the Lima conference is being used to the limit as before by Washington for the benefit of United States air rearmament propaganda.

"Indeed, Roosevelt yesterday with emphatic openness declared North American preparedness will be built for the purpose of being placed at the disposal of the whole continent for defense against possible air attacks from outside'."

The Hachtausgabe, in an editorial by its chief political correspondent, Otto Kriegk, violently attacked President Roosevelt, charging that "American imperialism" dictated the president's "mixing into German affairs" by his statement on the treatment of Jews.

The editorial said the president's statement showed "the United States has combined Jewish incitement with power politics which the American government has pursued for years in agreement with New York Jew banks."

BACKACHE
DUE TO SLUGGISH
KIDNEYS

Quick Relief! Important to Physic Kidneys at Your Bowels

If kidneys don't filter excess circulating acids from your blood every day—torturing backache often results as well as leg pains, bladder irritation, scanty burning passages and frequent getting up nights.

Common sense will tell you one RIGHT way to help flush acids from kidneys is with a LIQUID and here is a REAL tested and proven highly efficient product—just take a little daily dose of Kruschen Salts in warm water.

A 4 oz. jar of Kruschen (costs but a few cents) makes 5 gallons of a superbly healthful mineral water similar to the world-famous waters of European Spas where wealthy people have gone for years for relief from kidney symptoms. Don't fail to get a jar of Kruschen today. If it doesn't help you—wonderfully—money back. At Central Drug Store and druggists everywhere.

JOINS PROTEST

Cleveland Labor Federation Denounces Nazi Jewish Purge.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Cleveland federation of labor today joined in the wave of protests against Nazi persecution of Jews.

A resolution denouncing Hitler was adopted by the federation at its meeting last night. It was offered by Phil Hannah, secretary-business agent of the gasoline station operators union, who said Hitler was a "sadistic creature who gloats in the persecution of Jews."

SEES SPECIAL SCHOOL SESSION

Dietrich in Talk Here Says He's Sure Davey Will Call Legislature.

the legislature must re-enact the cigaret tax and the liquid fuel tax which expire in March.

"I have never said the schools would close in December, but it is possible that 75 per cent of them will unless I am permitted to authorize them to borrow against future tax collections.

"It would be unfortunate for the state to ask teachers to work without pay in the weeks just preceding Christmas."

He said teachers and school heads should urge state representatives to attend the special session if one is called by the governor.

"Some of them who were defeated in last week's election will need urging, for they have lost some of their enthusiasm," he said.

He praised Ralph C. Lutz, Richland county's representative as "a loyal friend of the schools."

"We school men should consider it an obligation to help solve this finance problem by working for economies in the education system," Dietrich declared.

Urges More Consolidation.

"Transportation of pupils and operation of one-room schools are major headaches in the matter of school financing," he asserted. "In some districts, it costs more to transport pupils to school than to educate them when they get there."

He urged the further consolidation of small districts and the possible establishment of county school units, instead of a number of local boards, to administer school affairs.

"Nearly 30 districts in Ohio, including Polk township in Crawford county, have school boards without any schools to manage," he pointed out.

"Another challenge of the school man is to fight back against the propaganda that is seeping into this country. As chief censor for the motion pictures that come into Ohio, I know that the forces back of Europeanisms are busy, and we have prohibited the showing of a number of movies that were purely propaganda for Communism and Naziism," he asserted.

The Jonathan glee club, directed by Albert Arnold, provided music for the program which was presented in the Ohio Fuel Gas company clubrooms on North Adams street.

Roy R. Spetka, principal of the Bushnell school and president of the Schoolmasters' club, was in charge of the meeting. John C. Stout, Senior high school instructor, arranged the program, and Supt W. L. Miller of the city schools, introduced Dietrich.

CRESTLINE — Miss Martha Schwert, became the bride of Charles E. Burky, son of Mrs. Annabel Burky of near Tiro in a pretty ceremony performed Saturday, Nov. 12 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna Schwert southeast of Crestline.

The single ring ceremony was read at 3:30 p. m. by Rev. R. A. Hall, pastor of the Community church at Ontario, before an improvised altar in the living room, and was witnessed by members of the immediate families and other relatives and invited friends.

Attending the couple were Miss Alice Rinehart and Robert Walker of east of Crestline.

For her wedding the bride wore a street length frock of Royal blue transparent velvet with brown accessories and her attendant wore wine color crepe with mtaching accessories.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Elsie Kissling of Mansfield sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because," accompanied at the piano by Miss Thelma Schaeffer who also played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party took their places before the altar.

Forty were in attendance for the wedding and reception which followed. A bridal cake bearing miniature bride and groom decorated the table for the serving of a buffet lunch.

The couple left later in the day for a short wedding trip in the southern part of Ohio, and will reside with the bride's mother on their return. The bride is a member of Crestline's Choral club and she is director of the choir at the Ontario Community church. The groom is employed at the Cooperative dairy in Shelby.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

U. S. GAINS BY TRADE TREATY

Pact With Britain Will Ease Tariff Law on Autos; 1,000 Products Involved.

made more comprehensive in order to compensate for changes occasioned by the parent Anglo-American pact.

The agreement with the United Kingdom sounds the death knell of the "empire preferences," under which the United States suffered severe trade losses.

Involved in the pacts are approximately 40 per cent of the entire world's trade and 60 per cent of America's foreign commerce.

Gains Auto Benefits.

The principal American beneficiaries under the key pact with the United Kingdom are: the automobile industry, wheat and livestock producers, the lumber industry and fruit growers.

Substantial concessions have been granted to the United States on automobiles and parts, fresh and dried fruits, wheat meal and flour, on lard, hams, women's shoes and clothing, and on certain types of electrical machinery, among many other items.

Chief concessions gained by the British are lowered tariffs on woolen goods, leather goods, especially men's shoes and boots, worsteds, linens, cotton laces, velvets and velveteens, unmanufactured flax, pickled salt herring, handkerchiefs, jute, undressed furs and specialized steel products.

One of the principal American gains, it was reported, is preferential treatment of American automobiles over motor cars manufactured in Europe.

Other gains of great importance in bolstering the income of American farmers and cattle raisers and of disposing of domestic surpluses of these products, were on wheat, beef, ham, bacon and lard. The British market for these American products had largely disappeared in recent years since adoption of the British Empire agreements.

Wheat meal and wheat flour, it was understood, have been placed on the free list. They have been subject to a 10 per cent ad valorem duty.

Deep concessions were gained in American fresh and dried fruits.

COUNTY AHEAD OF LAST YEAR'S TRAFFIC RECORD

Death Toll to Date Five Less Than in Same Period in 1937, Records Show.

Richland county drove into the last six weeks of 1938 today with a substantial lead over the traffic death and injury record of last year.

A strong possibility that the county and city's toll of dead and injured will be materially reduced this year appeared as the most hazardous month for driving approaches.

Sudden death on Richland county highways had claimed 24 lives at this time last year as compared with 19 so far in 1938.

In Mansfield a year ago five persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents while this year four have met the same fate. During 10 ½ month period last year 124 persons had been injured in accidents on city streets. The toll so far this year is 95.

According to Police Chief Meade K. Bates property damage due to collisions has been reduced this year as well as the death and injury toll.

Fewer Collisions, Too.

There were 1,235 automobile crashes in the 10½ month period in 1937 in which the car was the only victim. This year automobiles have figured in 739 collisions, police reports show.

Bates credited three points of traffic work for the improvement shown this year.

"Motorists today are becoming more safety conscious and that probably more than anything else has helped to reduce Mansfield's traffic toll," the chief said.

"Publicity in the newspapers both in regard to deaths and accidents and prevention work has helped immeasurably to make the public traffic safety conscious and cautious.

"Another thing that has aided in reducing accidents and in keeping the reckless driver off the highways is the driver's license law which calls for the suspension or revocation of the operator's permit if he fails to properly observe the law," Bates says.

He advocates, however, more stringent license laws than those now in force.

In Hollywood, Some Like Their Hair Atop Their Heads---

HOLLYWOOD—Out in Hollywood, the swing is up when it comes to coiffures. And there are many and varied types of upswing, as the pictures below would indicate—one to suit the features of each star who affects that particular style. Not all the stars, however, go in for the "up" style. Two of the four shown here, as you see, have distinctive bobs, instead.

GLADYS SWARTHOUT . . . her bob has tresses curling down under a gold cap. She wears a brocade gown set off by amber jewels.

ANN SOTHERN . . . wears new up-swing coiffure topped off with two feather swirls and jeweled earrings worn in smart fashion.

JOAN BENNETT . . . sports a combination up-do with bangs coiffure. She has a blue fur cape and matches it with pearls.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT . . . as usual she wears soft bangs. The wrap is of ermine and a large diamond bracelet adorns her arm.

But New York Debs Turn Thumbs Down On Upswept Locks

NEW YORK—Who says you have to put your hair up? The debutantes aren't doing it. And if ever there was a group of girls who religiously followed the dictate of fashion, it's the debs.

For years these budding society leaders have been doing what fashion experts, social secretaries and ambitious mamas have told them. They've pared their figures or filled them out, whatever the season's style has been.

Below are three long-lock opinions:

HELEN STEDMAN: "It takes me two hours if I put mine up—and my arms are limp afterwards."

ANN AMORY: "I look like I ought to have a broom in my hand when I put mine up."

AMANDA CECIL, obligingly patting the black velvet bow on the longest deb hair: "Nobody's wearing it up."

CHAPTER 48

THE ITEM in the paper was not long. It stated in concise language that Abbey and Ronald had been in a minor automobile accident the night before. It gave the time as half-past nine.

Half-past nine. At that time she had been sitting by the fire waiting, Judy remembered. But it was not Ronald's fault. He had not said that he was coming. She had been given no reason to believe that he ever would come again.

Besides she could not be a substitute choice. Nor would Ronald ask her to be. He played all games fairly.

Abbey was in the hospital with a bruised wrist and some minor lacerations, the story said. Ronald was all right.

Judy wadded the paper into a ball and threw it into the waste paper can at the station when she left her subway train. At the entrance to the building where the studio and shops were, she bought a gardenia for her coat collar. Henceforth she would buy gardenias, say "good morning" with extra warmth in her voice, work 12 hours a day instead of eight and ten, because you had to keep your head up when your walls came tumbling.

* * *

She gave her brown curls an upward toss—and her eyes looked into Ronald's.

He was standing in the entrance of her building.

"You're late," he said. "Five minutes!"

She must take hold of her heart, clutch it firmly. It must not take wings and fly again. It was so weary when it came fluttering back.

'Had breakfast?" he asked. "You probably didn't eat enough. Must you report in, or could you have some more?"

"I'll report in, then I'll meet you here, or won't you wait in the reception room?"

"I'll wait here. I'm beginning to like this entrance. I've spent twenty minutes in it."

Presently, sitting next to Ronald at a breakfast counter, she found herself laughing at his sallies. When the waitress left them to their graefruit, he became serious:

"Judy, I came for advice."

All that a friend could give, or ask! Advice.

He placed a handful of white envelopes and yellow ones on the counter.

"It's about a job, Judy."

"Mr. Heaton? You aren't staying with him?"

"If I stay in town, I will. He's a fine scout and he's been splendid. I gave their firm quite a wallop in those days when they didn't know what mess I'd become entangled in. Read some of the others."

Three other firms asked Ronald to join them if he desired to make a change. Other lawyers congratulated him on his fearlessness in fighting through the matter of the false charges without appeal for help.

Ronald took the letters and telegrams and swept them aside.

"I did have help," he said, slowly. "You gave it, Judy, why?"

"Because — well, wouldn't you have done the same thing for me?" she asked, but her heart was stirring, trying to break away from those confining walls she had erected for it.

"Is that all?" He put his hand over hers and the clasp was so strong, so warm, so vital that her heart, loosened, went winging its way.

'Not quite all," she answered him honestly.

* * *

Their eyes meet, and the world drew small, so small that it was just the space encompassed by Ronald's gray eyes as they searched Judy's brown ones. She caught her breath quickly.

"I love you, Judy," the man was saying. "I've loved you such a long time."

She did not remember all the fears, the doubts, the obstacles which only last night she had erected as an insurmountable barrier when she dreamed of Ronald.

"I love you, too," she said.

The grapefruit was scarcely touched, but Ronald pushed it aside and reached for Judy's hand.

"Let's get out of here," he said.

She stood up quickly, too. Nebulous as a mirage came back the evening that Craig had told her, for the last time, he loved her. There had been a moon, a sea, a string of stars, and she had worn a shining dress.

Now people shouted orders at the steamy counter, asked for checks, paid them, and it was half-past nine in the morning.

There had been a back drop for romance that other night. But this was glory and magic and fire flame and dawn against the coffee aroma of reality.

"Where are we going?" she asked then, for there were people everywhere. That contact with the world as it went down the street and up the street, on its way to work, brought her back to the questions she had been asking so ceaselessly in the night. Abbey—

Ronald sense the interrogation in the brown eyes that clouded a little.

He hailed a taxicab and they climbed in.

"Central Park," he said, and the driver raised amused eyebrows because he seldom drove young people, apparently self-possessed and dressed for business, through the park in the morning.

* * *

The world receded. Ronald was speaking, but the words were not important now. In her heart Judy believed, with love's swift forgiving, that she had expected them always.

"Can you believe that Abbey was never important, but circumstances placed me in a position where—" He drew his brows together, searching for chivalrous words.

Judy smiled. "Where you had to be a gentleman," she finished.

He laughed with her then; as quickly the mirth was gone. From his wallet he took a picture, and with an odd little catch of pain in her throat Judy recognized the newspaper portrait that Ronald had shown her months ago. She had torn it in pieces that day. Now here it was, the pieces taped together. He had not tossed them away. He had saved them—carried them all this time.

He was talking.

"Last night, when Abbey's car skidded on the way to the station—she insisited on driving me as a farewell to something or other—I had a horrow that I might crash up without ever letting you know—"

Then his arms were around her, a refuge for her against the whole wide world, and his lips were hard against hers—tender, then passionate and compelling.

There was no preoccupation in that kiss. He gave a pledge. Proudly.

The chiming of a clock, somewhere across the park, brought them back to the icy paths of the metropolitan woodland, and reluctantly Judy said: "Oh, Ronald, I'll have to go to work! But I'll skim through it. I won't be long—"

"Take your time," he said. "I have to get busy, too, Judy darling. But what decision of mine on which I wanted help — I'm wondering if I should go back to Tennessee and start again where I belong, or if I should stay here. What shall I do, Judy?"

* * *

What should he do? It did not really matter. For wherever he went she would be with him. Paradise was a lovely land, any land, where two people loved each other, fought together, worked together, laughed together, cried together.

She knew that now. Knew that marriage, when love was its foundation, was a kingdom that would stand. Marjorie had learned it too. Unafraid they might follow far paths, the lesson learned.

So she turned to Ronald, eyes soft and purple with their dreams. 'It doesn't matter, Ronald. Anywhere will be Heaven."

He pressed her hand for a moment. Then he said: "I wanted you to say that. Some time I'll show you the mountains, but maybe I'd better fight on here for awhile. But we'll go back, Judy. I want to go back."

The taxicab was stopping in front of Judy's building and Ronald helped her out.

"Until five o'clock, Judy," he said.

He was still standing by the cab, at the curb, as she went into the building. She blew him a kiss and he waved his hat. She would not be afraid any more.

PETS APLENTY

Youngster, 13, Takes 'Barnyard' to Annual Show.

MANCHESTER, Conn.— (INS) — Robert Hermann, 13, had difficulty in reaching out for the prize offered at the animal pet show—his hands were full. Robert's entries in the show included two rabbits, two pigeons, two chickens, two turkeys, a puppy, a cat, and two ducks.

THEATERS

AT THE last minute Oliver Hardy's mustache, which was ordered executed for his first picture with Harry Langdon, was given a reprieve, and the rotund comedian will wear it in "It's Spring Again." The title too, has been changed from the working title of "Zenobia's Mistake." But the Hardy derby, tight coat and big shoes have been abandoned and in their place he appears as a country doctor with a pince-nez. Harry will play a medicine man stranded in a small town.

* * *

Stage Show at Madison.

Friday and Saturday the Madison presents one of its combination stage-screen shows, with Rita Rio, the exotic brunet beauty and her music and dance revue, as the stage attraction. Rio leads her own all-girl band which is heard frequently over NBC stations, from the ballrooms of metropolitan hotels, and also dances with her partner, Billy Furrow. Jack Lane, the "man with a million face," Berte Yorke and Bea Tracy, Betty Lee, a zylophonist and several other dancers make up the personnel of her show. On the screen will be Bonita Granville in "Nancy Drew, Detective."

* * *

Shame On Powell.

Dick Powell will rouse the ire of many a male admirer of lovely Olivia deHavilland in "Hard to Get," for he makes that young lady do such menial tasks as sweep and dust and make the beds in a tourist camp when the spoiled daughter of wealth buys gasoline and doesn't have the money to pay for it. This romantic comedy is being shown at the Ohio.

Slave Ship Is Theme.

Gary Cooper and George Raft are co-starred in a salty tale of the sea, "Souls At Sea," which deals with the slave ships which transported slaves to the colonies, in the early 1800's. Frances Dee and Olympe Bradna are the two girls who find romance with the seamen on a slave ship under the unusual circumstances. "Souls At Sea," together with a Buck Jones western, "Law of the Texan," is the Majestic bill for Friday and Saturday.

* * *

Robinson As Clerk.

A shy, little clerk who is so like a notorious gangster that the authorities give him a passport to identify himself at all times, gets in a spot when the gangster forces him to hide and to give up his passport, in "The Whole Town's Talking," at the Park. Jean Arthur, as the clerk's "dream girl" inspires the courage that is needed to settle the point. Besides this feature, the Park is showing the movies of Mansfield made here last month.

* * *

Mother-Love Theme.

Barbara Stanwyck is seen as a woman who sacrifices love for a child who has grown up away from her in "Always Goodbye," and while the story is not another "Stella Dallas," it gives the star a dramatic role in which mother-love is the motivating theme Herbert Marshall and Ian Hunter are in the cast. The picture, with "Jungle Princess" is at the Ritz.

Davey Dismissed In Pension Case; Allman, Bevens Lose

WELFARE HEAD RULED LEGAL PARTY TO SUIT

Supreme Court Orders Answers to Taxpayer's Mandamus Action by Saturday.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Welfare Director Margaret Allman and Wray Bevens, division of aid for the aged chief, today faced an Ohio supreme court order to answer by Saturday a mandamus suit in the state's old age pension impasse, but Gov. Martin L. Davey won dismissal from the case.

The high court late yesterday sustained Governor Dovey's demurrer but denied those of Mrs. Allman and Bevens to the action of Edgar S. Byers, Cleveland Heights attorney.

Byers sued as a taxpayer to compel the three to abide by state laws and federal social security board regulations in an effort to restore government grants to Ohio for age pensions.

Portions Stricken Out.

On Governor Davey's motion, portions of the suit were stricken out Oct. 26. He contended the defendants were not required to comply with federal rulings and that state laws were being obeyed.

The federal board withheld its last quarter grants to Ohio after Governor Davey refused to make administrative changes in the state division. October checks averaging $23 were paid the state's 112,000 age pensioners from state funds. The federal government normally supplies half the money.

Upholding constitutionality of the automobile "certificate of title" law, the court held against the City Loan & Savings company which sought to compel the Seneca county recorder to file automobile chattel mortgages in his office instead of with the county clerk. The certificate of title law replaced the old bill of sale statute.

The court agreed to hear an appeal of the old bituminous coal producers board for district four seeking to collect assessments of $480 against the Starr-Jackson Mining company.

The U. S. supreme court held the coal code unconstitutional but the enforcement board contended the assessments under it were valid because they were required to meet obligations incurred prior to the act's invalidation.

Common pleas and appellate courts of Hocking county held that the mining firm was not required to meet the assessments.

Pull 17 Pheasants From Car, Driver Draws $220 Fine

MARYSVILLE—(AP)—An Ohio hunting trip cost Dr. Floyd S. Taylor of Huntington, W. Va., at least $220.80.

Noticing a crowd at nearby New California last night, Dr. Taylor and several friends stopped their car and inquired if there had been an accident. Instead, it was a game check and conservation officers found 17 pheasants—15 over the limit—in the machine.

The officers informed Dr. Taylor that if he had not stopped voluntarily he would not have been charged with game law violations because they had discontinued the check. Dr. Taylor pleaded guilty and was assessed fines and costs totaling $220.80.

He was one of 19 men arrested.

60 MORE ARRESTED

DAYTON—(AP)—The state conservation department was $750 richer today as a result of a night court session at nearby Fairfield for 60 hunters accused of state game law violations.

The 60 were arrested in a surprise raid last night by 40 state conservation officers and Greene county deputies spread over Miami conservancy district lands near the new Montgomery-Greene county state hunting preserve.

RITES SATURDAY

Solomon Goon to be Buried at Bunker Hill Church.

Funeral services for Solomon Goon, 86, lifelong resident of Richland county, who died Tuesday evening at a Toledo hospital, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Bunker Hill church, east of Butler, with Mrs. D. L. Brandenburg, pastor of the Mansfield Church of the Nazarene, officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Included among the survivors are a brother Robert of near Butler, and a sister, Mrs. Ella Wells of near Perrysville.

HILL RITES AT BUTLER

BUTLER—Funeral services for Benjamin C. Hill, 93, a former resident of Butler, who died in Phoenix, Ariz., recently, will be held at the George funeral home at 2 p. m. Sunday with Rev. R. A. Krisher officiating. Burial will be in the Bunker Hill cemetery. Mr. Hill left Butler 12 years ago to make his home in Phoenix with his son, B. F. Hill, the only survivor.

Ex-Legion Head Seen New War Secretary

Up and Down THE STREET

While there were frequent reports of bag limit catches on the first day of hunting season, William Hoffman, 9½ Martha avenue, East Mansfield, came through with what was probably the prize catch in Richland county. Hunting near Rome Tuesday Hoffman brought down with a single shot what is considered a rarity in this part of Ohio—a 25-pound Red fox.

Telling a story on himself during a talk before the Mansfield Schoolmasters' club last night, E. N. Dietrich, state director of education, said "the minds of school men are so filled with the problem of finding operating funds that I was introduced the other night, quite seriously, as Mr. Deficit." The error, however, gave the director an idea, he said, and he's been talking on the state foundation deficit ever since. He talked about it again last night.

Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the Mansfield board of education, is nursing a sore hand and arm today after stamping the board's official seal on 550 bonds for $1,000 each, representing the $550,000 school bond issue approved by voters in September. The bonds, which were purchased several weeks ago by the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, were delivered to the bank yesterday by Dr. Bristor. It required a half day for him to put the seal on the bonds.

Bunnies and pheasants in this vicinity will have to be on the jump tomorrow as that is the day that part of Cleveland's baseball colony comes loaded for game. At the start of every hunting season, ball players residing in Cleveland are the guests of Louis Woerth, 496 South Diamond street, a former diamond performer himself, on a hunting jaunt, and tomorrow is the day they selected for this year's hunt. The Cleveland party will be headed by Steve O'Neill, former Cleveland manager, and George Uhle, once a hurler for the Indians. Both O'Neill and Uhle are now connected with the Buffalo, N. Y., club.

AT CONVENTION

100 From County Attend Farm Bureau Meet in Capital.

Opening their two-day state convention in Columbus today, nearly 6,000 farm bureau delegates and members from throughout Ohio, including about 100 from Richland county, heard annual reports of the organization and discussed state taxes, schools, relief and old age pensions.

A committee submitted a resolution today criticizing specific, temporary taxes as increasing the cost of government "without any regard for future ability of the citizens of the state to pay taxes or for actual benefits to be received."

The resolution said huge expenses for other purposes had resulted in under-financing school, relief and old age pensions.

DEPOSITIONS ON STATION TAKEN

Attorney in City to Obtain Endorsements of Proposed Radio Outlet Here.

John W. Kendall, attorney of Washington, D. C., was in Mansfield today taking depositions favorable to the locating in Mansfield of a radio broadcasting station.

Kendall represents Richland, Inc., of which George Satterlee, Mansfield restaurant man, is president, and John F. Weimer, operator of station WJW Akron, is secretary-treasurer.

Kendall said today that his clients had asked about 50 Mansfield persons to appear at the hearing today which is being held in the Warner Brothers Ohio theater building, among them Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist, Police Chief Meade K. Bates and representatives of musical organizations, lodges and civic groups.

They hoped to secure enough favorable opinion to present to the Federal Communications Commission on Dec. 7 when their plea for a Mansfield radio station will be heard in Washington.

Mayor Hunter said today that he had been asked to appear at the hearing today but "didn't know what it was all about" and would withhold his approval until he has had time to discuss the project with citizens.

Kendall said testimony obtained today will be filed with the commission the first of December.

Representatives of three radio stations, WHK Cleveland, WSMK Dayton and WGL Ft. Wayne, have signified their intention of attending the hearing and protesting the proposed station for Mansfield on the grounds of interference and sufficient service. Officers and incorporators of the Richland company also will appear before the commission at that time.

BINGO, 'POOR MAN'S GAME, GETS SUPPORT OF CATHOLIC PRELATE

(By United Press)

CINCINNATI—The right of the poor man to indulge in "an innocent game of chance" was defended today by the chancery of the Catholic archdiocese of Cincinnati.

The letter from the chancery to priests, signed by Msgr. Matthias F. Heyker, chancellor, criticized Cincinnati city officials for banning bingo games

The letter mentioned no city official by name but declared "that a city official should array all the forces at his command against a harmless and innocent game of chance played by young and old under the most wholesome conditions, at the same time closing his eyes to dens of iniquity that are demoralizing the city and making one section of it a national scandal, seems incredible."

"The poor laboring man who indulges in an hour or two of innocent recreation in which he can spend as the maximum 50 cents to $1.35 is condemned with all the trappings of the law as if he had committed the worst of crimes, but the rich in the club life of Cincinnati can gamble notoriously for the highest stakes without interference," the letter continued.

"We find persons who are dealing in futures and buying on the margin in the stock markets condemn a simple game of chance. They have no qualms of conscience about reaping profits from the losses of scrub women, elevator boys and the poor who have been intrigued to take desperate chances."

The letter also condemned vile literature on sale here.

It contended that gamoling which is legally wrong is not necessarily morally wrong.

WHAT WAS IT?

Green Light Over Three States Alarms Residents.

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—A meteor that cast a green glare over three states last night excited residents and deluged police and airport offices with telephone calls.

The meteor was seen from California to New Mexico by airline pilots as it fell eastward.

The meteor resembled a lighted sputtering flare and trailing a shower of white light. California observers said it "hung together" until it passed over the horizon.

At first the meteor was believed to have been a falling transport plane.

JOHNSON TO BE NAMED, VETS IN INDIANA CLAIM

Woodring's Assistant Will Get Promotion, Resign From Committee Post.

(By International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Louis Johnson, former Amriecan Legion national commander, will be appointed secretary of war to succeed Harry Woodring, of Kansas, according to reports current among early arrivals at the annual meeting of the Legion's national executive committee here today.

Woodring, also a Legion leader, will resign the cabinet post within th next few days and the appointment of Johnson, whose home is in West Virginia, will be announced immediately, according to Legion leaders.

Johnson was expected to arrive today for the committee's meeting. He was elected Legion commander in 1932 and now is assistant secretary of war.

Won't Win Promotion.

Another Legionnaire Johnson will not fare so well in contemplated changes in President Roosevelt's cabinet, according to the Legion chieftains.

He is J. Monroe Johnson, of South Carolina, who has been active in affairs of the veterans' organization for many years. Johnson now is assistant secretary of commerce, but will not climb a step in the event of the expected resignation of Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, according to reports here.

Legionnaires said Roper's post will go to Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, as was reported by International News Service several days ago. Whether Monroe Johnson would retain his post as assistant, if Hopkins is elevated to the cabinet, was discussed freely by leaders of the Legion.

The national executive committee, which is the ruling body of the Legion between national conventions, will meet tomorrow and Saturday. The committee will plan the Legion's national defense, hospitalization and Americanism programs for the ensuing year.

That the Legion will take a vigorous part in national affairs was indicated by National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick, who yesterday demanded that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins expedite deportation proceedings for Harry Bridges, Pacific coast labor leader, and a few hours later issued a statement indorsing President Roosevelt's attitude toward Nazi Germany.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Nazis Have Planned For Some Time Final Act In Debasement of Nation

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It is no more possible to argue with the Nazi state of mind than with the germ of some foul disease.

It must be considered as a thing, no more capable of reason or decency than dirt. Civilized human beings find it offensive even as a topic of discussion, but must discuss it because it is there, swollen and horrible to sight, smell and intelligence, right outside the window of the homes of the human race and beginning to spread disease.

In this vein, and not as an appeal to the non-existent reason of the thing, human beings must discuss its offensiveness and speculate on means of protecting themselves from its pervading stench and the dangers emanating from a rotting object in the street.

This thing thinks that it is God and that all the creatures which crawl in it partake of Godliness, while the members of the human race, being outside Nazidom, are vermin to be subdued, sickened and destroyed by the germs which it gives off.

It has called this country a nation of gangsters and boasted of its discipline and then has ordered out mobs to murder, loot and burn, offering the excuse that the disciplined, non-gangster state was unable to control the rioters and maintain internal order. This country has had a few isolated, spontaneous mishaps of the same kind in Chicago, Springfield and Atlanta, but with the difference that the government in all such cases promptly leaped into the right to quell the rioting and restore order.

* * *

This Nazi thing for some time had been planning the final act in the debasement of the German nation, the reintroduction of human slavery in a country which once could make honest boast of its intelligence and civilization. The assassination of one of its agents by a young Pole in Paris was not the cause but the pretext. If this had been an outburst of uncontrollable public indignation it would have happened three years ago, when another desperate victim of its tortures killed one of its agents in Switzerland. The indignation was well controlled that time, however, because the Nazi thing was not yet ready to stage the act.

The thing calls its victims all communists in one breath and in the next speaks of them as greedy capitalists. It cries "coward!" at an utterly desperate waif in the world who invited death to strike one blow, but sees bravery in the hounding and scourging of unarmed, helpless, hopeless, starving people by mobs operating without risk under the direction of its police and troops.

It cries "gangsters!" at the American nation and pleads helplessness when mobs stone two cardinals in their homes, smash and loot and throw a priest out of a window to his death.

* * *

This Nazi thing set adrift in a river a barge loaded with its victims and laughed uproariously as they were stoned from shore to shore, threatened with death by beating wherever they would land and with death by starvation and exposure if they didn't land. It has made human beings prowl in a field on all fours, like beasts, to cut the grass by nibbling it with their teeth and has found humor in that.

It has torn families apart and stoned them away in all directions, never to be reunited or know a day's peace again in this world, and forbidden fathers even to beseech, much less to work, for food, warmth or medicine for their children.

* * *

This thing has infected the Italian nation and has even exported its pestilence to this country through its bunds, while from Germany it reviles the very people whom the bunds are ordered to seduce. It has armed beyond any other power in the world and mobilized 1,500,000 men to crush an independent nation, but has denounced this country as a warmaker because the United States has decided to repair its defenses.

And yet, between the lines from Germany at the height of the terror, there were hidden away little hints that some of the German people still remain human beings. Some were arrested, the dispatches said, for daring to express pity for the victims and alarm for German civilization. A German woman was beaten up for a murmured objection. So there is ground for hoping that if the force were removed the decent element by example, influence and law would lead the race back to civilization and bury the thing in shame.

The American Steuben societies purport to cherish Americanism while preserving their cultural heritage. That heritage is almost destroyed in Germany and is in much more urgent need of preservation there than here. The Steuben societies have spoken out courageously on persecution many times, but if there ever was a time for them to denounce it and defend their heritage the time is now and Germany is the place in which to make themselves heard.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Something's got to be done about it.

The movies are making newspapering too goldarned attractive. Any youngster who knows his movie reporter knows he's a sucker not to be in the "game."

So the competition will be terrific. The unglamorous, plodding oldsters will have to step out. I don't wanna step out. I say something's got to be done.

According to the movies, any youngster—girl or boy—IS a sucker not to be a reporter.

The boys, job-hunting, all learn from the screen that reporters, nine times out of ten, will marry the richest girl in the world. To make it worse, the girl with the dough is pretty sure to be (a) Loretta Young or (b) Joan Crawford or (c) Bette Davis or (d) Virginia Bruce or (e) Claudette Colbert.

* * *

For added inducement, the boys learn from the movies that reporters always are privileged to tell their managing editors to (a) go to hell, and (b) go to hell again.

For the girls now, it's different. Almost anything can happen to a movie gal reporter. The important thing, of course, is that she invariably meets nice young men. If not Errol Flynn or Gable, she is fairly certain to smite the heart of Pat O'Brien, Michael Whalen, Barton MacLane or Cesar Romero. The nice young man may be a rival reporter, but occasionally he'll be the richest man in the world.

In the movies, too, a girl reporter is always turned out so neatly in wardrobe and coiffure that you know she makes a whopping salary. You never know how she does it, but Claire Trevor's sob sisters seldom wear the same outfit twice. Gloria Stuart's scoop-hunters are smartly attired on all occasions, and Glenda Farrell's Torchy Blane takes no back seat in fashion either.

Most girls can go through life without running smack into a plot, but never your gal reporter in the movies. Every trip through Chinatown, every stroll past a deserted warehouse or along a foggy wharf, is fraught with peril and a scoop. The girl not only survives the former and cops the latter, but achieves both ends without ruffling her hair or mussing her natty clothes.

* * *

The girl reporters, too, are unhandicapped by ethical considerations. They can cheat, lie steal—see Claire Trevor in "Five of a Kind"—and they can get righteously indignant when the rival sheet beats them at all games. They can borrow nickels from unsuspecting rivals — see Torchy Blane—to 'phone in their scoops, and they can marry the victim—see Rosalind Russell in "Four's a Crowd"—to get the "inside story." Whether that's better than marrying the victim to provide a home for a Dead End Kid—see Joan Blondell in "Love Bites Man"—is merely a matter of opinion.

There's one hope, however. In "Dodge City" Olivia de Havilland is a reporter. She writes society items—this is 1872—and she has to wear a corset. But even this movie unfortunate gets Errol Flynn. Even this girl reporter meets so many interesting people.

Young Girl Doesn't Spoil Friend

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 22 years of age and care very much for a young man who is the brother of a girl friend of mine. He is 21. Although he has never asked me out, he acts as if he likes me whenever I come over to visit my girl chum. She's of a jealous disposition, and because she's older than he is, she won't let him go "steady" with any girl.

If I ask him to call, I'm afraid she'll forbid him to go, because—as he's younger than she is—he always does as she says. He'll be sure to tell her I asked. What can I do?

DORIS

Why not invite him to call and see what happens? It sounds strange to me that any young man should be so willing to mind his older sister to the extent of refusing to call on one of her girl friends: Treat him as you would any other young man of your acquaintance.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm supposed to be engaged to a young man of 21. I won't allow him to come to see me more than twice a week, and usually only once. He has the idea that I let him call only when I have nothing else to do, but he never turns down a chance to come, even if I call him at the last minute.

Lately I've met another boy whom I like and he's been coming to see me. He used to go around with a wild girl, but says if I'll go "steady" with him, he'll drop this girl. I'd like to reform him, so I'm going with both these boys. In fact, I'm very fond of them.

I'm only 18, and am asking your advice. If my "fiance" knows about this second boy he mig. not like it, so I don't know what course to take. I don't want to give up either boy.

JANET.

I'm very glad to print your letter, as it proves that a girl who is independent has a better hold on a boy friend than the "doormat" type of girl. The latter type is forever accusing herself of all sorts of things against her boy friend, when the real truth is she's too good for him and is just spoiling him. At 18 you have plenty of time to choose, and I wouldn't sign up with either for the time being

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, November 18.

The astral operations, both by lunar and mutual direction, point to very exciting situations and conditions on this day. There may be much commotion and agitation but little achievement, although much might be accomplished by restraint, calm deliberation and sagacious handling of vexatious or tumultuous contacts. Impetuosity, sarcasm and enmity may bring opposition from elders and powerful friends, with financial loss as a consequence.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which results and achievements depend on individual sagacity, calmness, sound judgment and the control of inherent tendencies to acrimony, rash tongue and temper, with impetuous and inconsiderate conduct. These aggravate opposition from friends and elders, resulting in loss of funds, prestige and peace of mind. Precaution and moderate behavior are recommended for happy culminations.

A child born on this day may be well endowed with talents and energies for success, being studious, industrious and of the creative ability. But its proclivity to caustic and intemperate words and deeds may prove defeating factors to its success.

My Neighbor Says:

While hyacinth and narcissus bulbs will bloom in water, all bulbs produce better blossoms when planted in pots of earth. Good garden soil and well rotted manure in equal parts is the ideal soil, but use the best soil you have.

Buy them from a reliable seed store and never plant mixed bulbs for winter bloom. Buy only named varieties, and only those which are recommended for forcing. If you like hyacinths, plant half a dozen white Roman hyacinths in a six-inch pot now. Set the pot in a dark, cool place until about the middle of December. Then bring to the light, placing in a sunny window, and you should have blooms for Christmas.

Try baking the crust for a custard pie for 10 minutes in a moderate oven before adding the filling. Then test the crust to see if it is of the right consistency. Crust will not then become soggy.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

ABSORBED in their anger at Philip Veritzen as the probable instigator of the espionage upon their adored sister, they apparently had forgotten all about the detective trailing us, I was sure upon orders from the great theatrical magnate. But I had kept my eyes alert, and when we drew up in front of the theater I purposely faced the street while Bill was purchasing the tickets. I watched the people on it from beneath lowered eyelids, while I apparently studied a program.

It was but a second before my vigil was rewarded. The taxi which the man under our suspicion had entered stopped, "double parking" diagonally across the street from the theater, so that it was not directly opposite us. The man alighted leisurely, paid the driver and drifted unobtrusively into a doorway from which he could overlook the theater entrance.

I realized that he was scanning me curiously, perhaps wondering why I was standing outside with Bill instead of accompanying Mary and Hank into the lobby. With a sudden fear that he might suspect I knew his errand, I raised my eyes from my program and, without looking toward the street, turned to Bill, who had just finished buying the tickets, and extended the program to him, with my finger pointing to a line of print.

"This is just a pretense, Bill, I murmured, "I'll explain later. But I wish you'd take this program, look at the line I've pointed out, then return it to me with a decided shake of the head, say the first thing that occurs to you, and then escore me into the theater."

As Mary has often commented, Bill is "much quicker on the uptake" than Hank. He extended his hand for the program with a muttered "I get you," went through the pantomime I had indicated, and then said quite grandly, "I can't agree with you, Auntie Madge. I think the other picture's grand." The he slipped his hand underneath my elbow and ushered me through the door with punctilious courtesy.

Hank gave an excited report of seating conditions when we came up to them.

"Every seat's taken," he said, "and there's quite a crowd waiting in the back. But the big picture's almost through, so we'll get seats as soon it it's over. A lot of people will be coming out. D'ye want to go in now, so we'll be ready to rush down when they begin to come out?"

"You'll spoil everything for yourself and Bill," Mary said, "if you do that. It won't make a speck of difference to Auntie Madge or me, for we've seen it before, but if you boys go in there now, you can't help seeing the end of the thing, and it'll ruin the whole picture for you because it's a sort of surprise ending. I'm sure we won't have to rush for seats. Don't you think so, Auntie Madge?."

I broke into swift, murmured speech, for I had just seen the detective come up to the ticket window.

Gives Instructions.

"We'll get seats, surely," I said crisply. "But listen carefully. That detective is buying a ticket. He may sit near us. Be careful that you say nothing except comments on the picture, nothing of our plan for supper, or any reference to Mary's father-in-law. Try to look unconcerned, and keep talking about the picture. He's coming this way, evidently confident that we do not dream of his identity."

It was Mary who seized the cue first and tossed it back.

"Well! Have you boys decided yet?" she asked. "Do you want to go in before the picture is over, or will you take a chance on getting seats?"

"I'd rather stand than see the ending first," Bill responded promptly.

"So would I," Hank agreed.

"You won't have to," Mary said confidently. "I'm sure we'll even be able to get seats together. If we don't at first, the first picture doesn't matter, and we'll be able to get together for the big one. There! They're coming out now. Let's go!"

Swinging Hips Not Attractive To Observer

By MME. QUI VIVE

Before women took to wearing trousers in all their multiple manifestations they walked like ladies. They really did."

Hip swingers are not free, deep breathers. Even the smartest of them can't hold their chests high and sway the mid-section. Shallow breathing is responsible for skin pallor. Deep breathing animates blood streams, makes cheeks rosy. Nothing should interfere with it.

When walking the movement of the body should be rhythmic with perfect harmony of muscle action. Rhythm is impossible when one shoulder and then the other shunts forward with each step, that's what happens when the hips sway from side to side. Pretty dollies who are expert at this affectation seem to be walking sidewise. We suspect that they are calling attention to their anatomical charms, if they have any. Which is not according to the ethics of sensible behavior.

With the spinal column kept tall, as it should be for the sake of health and good appearance, there can be no loose-jointed swing of the torso. Take the kinks out of the backbone, fall into a regular stride and you're walking, not just getting where you're going.

To thrive in winter plants must have at least a reasonable amount of light, fresh air and water and a moist, even temperature.

Uses For Chestnuts Given

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

THIS IS the time of year to go on a chestnut splurge. Wise women don't do as some folks and serve chestnuts only at holiday time in the form of a chestnut stuffing or chestnut puree. They serve them in other ways, such as these delicious chestnut dishes.

Talking of chestnut puree, though, reminds us that it is delicious with broiled lamb chops or with a nice joint of roast pork. This recipe calls for one quart chestnuts, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons cream, one-quarter teaspoon onion juice, salt and pepper to taste. Shell, blanch and boil chestnuts until soft, then rub through a sieve. Then turn puree into saucepan, and add butter, cream, onion juice, salt and pepper. Stir until quite hot.

Stewed Chestnuts.

Plain stewed chestnuts are delicious. Make an incision in the side of each chestnut with a sharp knife and put in oven for 10 minutes, after which time they will peel easily. Put the peeled chestnuts in a saucepan just big enough to hold them, then add an ounce of butter, salt, pepper, a piece of loaf sugar, sprig of thyme and enough well-flavored stock to cover them. Cover the saucepan, let come to a boil, then let simmer gently until the chestnuts are cooked, but still whole, and have absorbed the stock. It takes about an hour.

To boil chestnuts, wash them and make a slit in the shell of each, with a knife, then throw them into a pan of salted boiling water. Boil quickly for 30 minutes, or until they are tender, then drain. They may be served as they are, in a folded napkin, with small rolls of butter served separately. But if eaten as a vegetable, remove outer shell and the brown inner skin, season with salt and pepper and toss nuts in butter over flame. Serve very hot.

With Parsley Sauce.

Chestnuts with parsley sauce call for a pound of nuts, ounce of butter, teaspoon flour, gill of milk, egg yolk, tablespoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper. Prepare and boil chestnuts in inner and outer skins. Melt butter in pan, put in nuts, sprinkle with flour and cook for a few minutes without letting them brown Then add salt, pepper and milk, stir until smooth, then add the egg yolk and parsley Serve at once in very hot dish.

To make tasty tea biscuits add chopped candied fruit peel to your regular biscuit dough. The fruit may be placed inside or on top of the mixture before it is baked. Candied ginger may be used in the same way.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

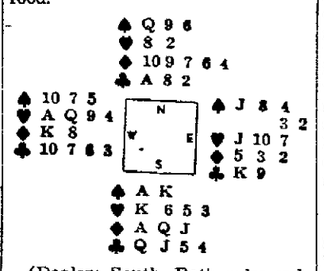
"The Authority on Authorities"

THAT VITAL ENTRY

FINESSES can be a luxury which you are unable to afford. If one of them necessitates giving up an entry which is needed to bring in the remainders of an entire suit, it should be forgotten. Trying it in this case would be like spending on a piece of jewelry money which is needed for food.



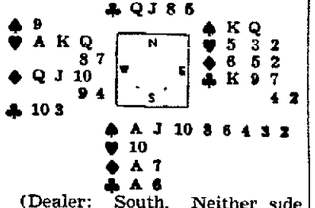
(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal was 1-No Trump by South, 2-Diamonds by North and 3-No Trump by South.

The heart 4 was led by West, the 10 played by East and South won with the K. As the dummy offered only one entry, South had to decide whether he could afford to risk the loss of the diamond finesse. He decided against it. With the heart 4 led by West and the 2 and 3 in sight, it was evident that West held only four originally and could do no great harm if he cashed the diamond K and three hearts. Declarer therefore laid down the spades A and K and followed with the diamond A and diamond Q. The latter was won by West's K and three hearts taken. West returned a club to dummy's A. On the spade Q, the diamond J was discarded and declarer claimed the remainder of the tricks.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play to make his contract of 5-Spades after the heart K has been cashed and a heart returned?

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

CONSUELO is going to have a theater soon. Just as her manager thought, the notice went up on one of the newest productions, which means that it closes in two weeks. Tomorrow her manager is signing the theater lease, and if all goes well she will open in three weeks.

Fortunately, most of the cast is intact, only two minor roles having to be recast. The leading man, a great favorite, who went to the west coast to attend to some business, was on the point of signing for a movie when he got the phone call telling him that the show had a theater. It is one of the nicest houses in town, much nicer than the original theater, so perhaps it will be all for the best. Consuelo is so happy, for her role is a splendid one and she is so anxious to put it over.

Party on Again.

So it looks as though our little party will be on again in a few weeks. It so happened that Bill called today He wanted to speak to Madame about something, and so I was able to tell him. He asked me if I couldn't have dinner with him soon, but I told him that as we rather thought that Dodo would be coming in, it was impossible to make a definite date. He said he would call me again and see if we couldn't arrange something. He certainly does seem keen to see me. Maybe we'll let bygones be bygones and begin all over again.

I'm not going to broach the subject if we do go out. I'll stick to my original intention of setting the stage on the night of Consuelo's show. We'll be all dressed up and relaxed and ready for romance, so I think it better to wait. Maybe Dodo will be with us, but I'm sure that we will have a chance to have a talk. That is, of course, if Bill is still fond of me. It may be that I am just fooling myself and that he hasn't any interest in me at all, beyond that of a friend. But then, why does he keep calling me and wanting to make dates? He can't exactly hate me!

Black Velvet Silhouette.

Here's a dress that was especially created for the Velvet Ball. It is of black velvet on severely straight and slim lines. The slender silhouette is relieved by crushed and shirred satin bands that make the camisole top and encircle the skirt below the knee and at the hem. It is slightly fuller in back at the hem. It has a zipper in back.

Grilled sandwiches are popular for informal supper or refreshments. The grilling may be accomplished, by toasting or browning the sandwiches in a small amount of fat in a frying pan. Forks should be provided for eating grilled sandwiches.

Emergency Preparedness

By MRS. V. E. VINING

When you read in the paper of a devastating hurricane doing untold damage in some section of the country—in the next paragraph you always find that the American Red Cross is on the job.

Did it ever occur to you why such prompt aid is forthcoming? Did you ever wonder what would happen if a tornado or fire were to sweep through Richland county?

The local chapter of Red Cross, like all other chapters in this country, is pledged to be ready at all times to meet such an emergency, hoping always that the need will never come. In order to give this pledge practical form a complete Disaster Preparedness committee is always ready in the Mansfield area.

On file in the offices of the mayor, chief of police, fire chief, and county sheriff are the names, telephone numbers, and addresses of Mrs. V. E. Vining, chairman; H. W. Arlin, alternate; Roy Spetka, chairman of the Red Cross board and Mrs. Gertrude English, executive secretary.

When, and if, disaster strikes these people would call the various subchairmen of their committee.

The group headed by Harold Burns would go into the field to survey the extent of the disaster, the approximate number of homes destroyed, people injured and road and communication lines impaired. Along with this group Harker A. Enlow would take a rescue squad to administer first aid and temporarily relieve the suffering.

The problem of feeding the hungry would be in the hands of Paul Sturges and his committee who have a constantly revised listing of supplies available in our own wholesale district, with Avery Hand acting as purchasing agent.

The problem of where and how to shelter the homeless is a big one. It is Roy McGinty's job to know what buildings in every section of the county could be used for shelter, how many people could be housed in each one—together with facilities for cooking and sanitation.

J. W. Cook and his group are prepared to handle donations of clothing for the suffering.

Reynolds Hodgson, in charge of canteen work, would supply sandwiches and coffee to hundreds of hungry workers.

All volunteers report to Mrs. H. E. Hawley.

Communication with the outside world would be maintained through amateur radio operators and Boy Scouts in charge of Floyd Dent, while transportation of supplies or of the injured would be handled by Fred Boak and his workers.

Care of the sick and wounded, to say nothing of the babies the stork always brings at such a time, requires a corps of doctors and this would be headed by Dr. L. A. Adams.

In order that friends and relatives could secure information a registration bureau in charge of John Finefrock would list all families affected by the disaster, and the extent of their trouble.

With the wreckage cleared away and the immediate suffering alleviated—the problem of financing rehabilitation would fall to W. J. Spreng and his committee.

The work in time of disaster is only one of the many deeds of mercy American Red Cross is constantly doing.

Your dollar and mine make this possible.

SUIT SETTLED

Railroad and Woman Suing for $2,500 Reach Agreement.

A suit for $2,500 personal damages against the city of Mansfield and the Pennsylvania Railroad company had been settled out of court today for approximately one-third that amount, attorneys for the plaintiff and the city revealed today.

The suit, which was scheduled for jury trial this week, was brought by Mrs. Mary L. Lutton, Mansfield, who sought damages for injuries she received in March, 1937, when she stumbled and fell at the Pennsylvania tracks on East Fifth street.

City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., counsel for the city, said the settlement would cost the city about $100, or "about 15 per cent of the total." Atty. Joseph A. Bayer, counsel for Mrs. Lutton, admitted the railroad company would pay "about 85 per cent of the damages," but declined to reveal the amount.

Of 64 elements known to be present in the soil, 58 have been found in plants growing in the soil.
